PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$5 per Year in Advance. F. W. [illegible], Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 11 Somerset street. Printing of All Kinds. 10 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1894. PRICE TWO CENTS.

MR. NAESER'S OPENING.

A LARGE CROWD PRESENT AT THE RIDING ACADEMY LAST NIGHT.

Some Fine Exhibitions of Riding by Prof. Naeser.—The New Proprietor to Fit the Rooms Up Comfortably.

Proprietor W. Naeser of the Crescent Riding Academy, had a formal opening last evening, and fully two hundred spectators were present. Guttmann's band furnished the music. Mr. Naeser rode a handsome bay with mane decorations and his assistant rode a similar one. After the "grand march," in which seven took part, Mr. Naeser gave an exhibition of hurdle riding. All but one of the horses made the jumps from two to four feet high. Mr. Naeser has six horses of his own, and he is thoroughly convinced that Plainfield is the place where riding should and could be taught. He is a man of means, and has spared no time or expense to fix up the riding academy in good shape. The room formerly used for the skate room is now a saddlery and harness room. The ladies' dressing and toilet rooms are to be made attractive by Brussels carpet and rugs. Everything for the comfort and convenience of his patrons Mr. Naeser will add. Among the riders last evening were J. W. Johnson and sons and D. M. Groendyke.

The Finest Coach in the Service.

The New York coach passed through here yesterday afternoon, about 4:15 o'clock. On the gayly colored "Vivid," the finest coach in the service, were well-known members of the New York Coaching Club, who chartered the coach on Saturday for Philadelphia: Neilson Browne drove and Col. William Jay, Frederick Bronson, Perry Belmont, Dr. W. Seward Webb, Frank K. Sturgis, Ogden Mills, Prescott Lawrence, W. W. Sherman, Reginald Rives and Francis T. Underhill were the passengers.

The Club, under the name of "The Suburban Coaching Club," was incorporated yesterday and the articles were filed in County Clerk Gummere's office at Trenton. The club was organized with a capital of $5,000, the intention being to conduct the line of tally-hos now running between Philadelphia and New York according to the laws of this State. The capital stock is divided into 500 shares, which are taken as follows: Edward Maxwell Morrell, Philadelphia, 250; Edward Browning, Philadelphia, 248; John Gray, Camden, 2

A Change in the Bowling Games.

Mr. Charles Vail, who has charge of the bowling games of the Board of Trade, has been compelled to make a change in the arrangement of his match games. As previously announced, the Board of Trade team was to go to Westfield on Friday night, and play the C. Y. M. L's on the home alleys on Tuesday night of next week. On account of the Westfield Club being unable to bowl on Friday night, the games have been changed and the Board of Trade will bowl the C. Y. M. L's Friday night, and the Westfield's on Tuesday night.

Flowers for the Graves.

This year, for the first time, the veterans of this locality must depend upon popular subscription, including their personal contributions, for the expense of appropriately commemorating those who have gone:

> "Where the foeman cannot come;
> Where the summons never sounded,
> Of the trumpet and the drum."

Some unknown friend to-day sent Mr. George W. Moore, Treasurer of the Detail, a check for $25.

Piano Recital at Madison.

Miss Alice O. Smith and pupils from this city, assisted by Herbert K. Saxe, vocalist, of Madison, will give a complimentary piano recital at that place, in Association Hall, on Wednesday evening, May 9, at eight o'clock. An unusually interesting entertainment may be looked for.

Baby Carriage Upset.

Yesterday afternoon, while a woman was in Mr. Van Winkle's store on Somerset street, her baby carriage, which she had left outside with a baby in it, upset off the sidewalk into the street. The infant struck upon its head, receiving severe injuries.

For the Children of the Parish.

There will be an entertainment at the old Grace church to-night for the children of the parish.

The programme will consist of recitations by H. B. Ely, singing by Fred. Pope, besides musical selections on piano and violin.

"Rutger's Quartette."

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the First Methodist Episcopal church, will give a free musical and reception in Vincent chapel, Friday evening, May 4th. The offer of twenty-five cents at the door will not be refused.

No. 327 Will Soon be on the Move.

Henry & Johns, building movers, are getting the old building, No. 327 Park avenue, adjoining the Miller building, ready for its journey to Plainfield avenue.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The Annual Entertainment Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The Monday Afternoon Club held its annual entertainment at the Casino yesterday afternoon. The programme was a varied one, consisting of readings by Miss Bangs of New York, and piano playing by Miss Ada F. Marsh, Miss Marion Dumont, and Miss Bidwell of Brooklyn. The latter performed upon the new key-board of six banks of keys, which has recently been introduced in connection with the Decker piano. At the conclusion of the programme ices were served, and an hour spent in social intercourse by the members and their friends.

UNION COUNTY COURTS.

The May Session Convened at Elizabeth To-Day.

Many Plainfield lawyers attended the opening of the May terms of the Union County court at Elizabeth to-day.

The Grand Jury was sworn with Mayor Rankin as foreman. Those from Plainfield on the Jury are Messrs. Andrew Vanderbeek, William Addis and Charles Herring.

The case of John W. McIntyre vs. Samuel K. Schwenk was called for to-morrow. Mr. Charles A. Reed of this city is counsel for the plaintiff in this action.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Castleman of New York was the guest of Mr. C. C. Cokefair, of Crescent avenue, Sunday.

Mr. Frank Raymond gave a dinner to a few friends at his home on Madison avenue last night.

Mr. A. M. Ross of New York was the guest of Mr. Alexander Ross of Grant avenue over Sunday.

Mrs. Alice M. Sommer, of 537 West Fifth street, is very ill. Dr. Boone is the attending physician.

Mr. James Milligan and family of Brooklyn are again at their cosy Summer home in Washington Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Greer of Central avenue have become domiciled in Mr. Coriell's new house on Liberty street.

Miss Taylor of Watchung avenue has returned home after a pleasant visit with her sister, Miss Huff of Dunellen.

Mr. H. L. Bogardus of New York to-day took possession of the Moore house, on Crescent avenue, which he recently leased.

Mr. Carney, one of the United States Express Company's messengers, resumed work to-day after being confined to the house a month with pneumonia.

Mrs. Randolph, after a lingering illness from consumption, died at her home at Scotch Plains Sunday night. She leaves a husband and four children.

The Rev. Mr. Koechli, of North Plainfield, left to-day as a delegate to attend the meeting of the Particular Synod of New Brunswick, which is being held at Paterson. He will be gone two days.

"A Comparison of Laws and Commandments from Various Sacred Books" will be the subject at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at eight o'clock, to-morrow evening. All who are interested in such study are invited.

Her Birthday Nor Forgotten.

Mrs. S. R. Hope of Richmond street was 61 years old yesterday, and in celebration of the event a surprise party was tendered to her at her home.

Among the evening's pastimes were recitations by Miss Gussie Newman, Lillian Hope and Ida May Tallamy; songs by Bert Tallamy; violin and flute solos by William and Bert Tallamy.

Refreshments were served at 10.30 o'clock.

Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Newman, the Misses Gussie and Belle Newman, Frank Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Allen and Chester Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Bectel and Donald Bectel, Mr. and Mrs. Scull and Cora and Harry Scull, Mrs. C. R. Hope, Miss Tillie Terry, and Frank Terry, Mrs. Tallamy, Master Bert and William Tallmay, Ida May Tallamy, Lucy Jennings, Irene Hope, Miss Belle Bowman, Violet Hope, Lillian Hope, Mrs. Langer, Miss Vail and Mrs. Cottrell.

Enthusiastic Fishermen.

Two boys whose homes are in the borough, started out on a fishing expedition last evening. After wading in Stony brook for about a half-hour, and having caught six or seven "chubs," they started homeward, walking in the middle of the brook. The proceeded all right until they came to a barb wire fence, which spanned the stream, when one of the boys caught his trousers in the fence. He was thrown headlong into the water, getting an impromptu cold water bath and the lantern he was carrying smashed. The boys are not so enthusiastic about fishing as before.

A Recruit for Coxey's Army.

Policeman Mattox last night, found James Gillespie asleep in a freight car at the Fourth street siding. Gillespie didn't like the idea of being disturbed from his slumbers. He consented however to accompany the policeman to the lockup where he was allowed to finish his nap in peace.

Gillespie was arraigned before Judge Coddington, charged with trespassing on the railroad.

Sentence was suspended upon condition that he leave town at once.

FAIR OF ST. JOSEPH'S.

CONDUCTED BY THE FAIR SEX OF ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH.

Those Who Have Charge of the Tables—Dancing Every Night—The New Brunswick Band will be Present To-Night.

St. Joseph's church fair opened last night in Saengerbund hall, on Somerset street. The attendance was fairly good for the first night.

At the right of the hall as one enters is seen a prettily arranged table of beautiful articles, presided over by a bevy of pretty young ladies. The table was arranged by the Children of Mary. Those in charge of this table are Miss Nellie McCann, Miss Mamie Doud, Miss May Hughes, Miss Mary Jacot and Miss Fitzgerald.

The Rosary table is looked after by Mrs. R. A. Boyce, Mrs. Riley, and Mrs. David Kenney.

At the refreshment table were: Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Farlee and Mrs. Andrew Kenney.

Carl Kaerth dispensed soda water, etc., to the thirsty.

Dancing is made a prominent feature of the fair. That the dancers will be well looked after is evidenced by the two popular young men who have charge of it. They are Messrs. William Kiely and James Daly.

Music for dancing was furnished by Prof O'Reilly.

Some of the contests are as follows:

For an organ—Mrs. O'Reilly, Lena Weber and Mrs. John McCann.

For gold a ring—Mary Kenney and Katie Carty.

For a gold cross—Maria Caffrey and Maggie Richardson.

For a doll—Lida Boyce and Katie Whalen.

The New Brunswick Band, of 30 pieces, connected with the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of that place, will be present to-night. Before going to the hall they will give a street parade.

Red Men Went to Elizabeth.

Sachem Ulrich and a delegation, including a committee on resolutions from Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe of Red Men of this city, visited Leola Tribe of Elizabeth last night. Judge Nash in his usual pleasant and happy manner made the presentation speech, and dwelt particularly upon the strong feeling of friendship existing between Red Men. The resolutions were received with appropriate remarks. After the regular work had been disposed of the visiting Indians were entertained with "coon and venison." Mr. Loomis of North Plainfield engrossed the resolutions which were a work of art. They were framed by Mr. S. E. Flower. Mr. S. Bullock made a speech and presented the Leola Tribe with complimentary tickets to Paughcaughnaughsinque's fair. The Grand Officers of the State were present.

The Plainfield Postmastership (?) Settled.

One of the post office carriers casually wandered into George W. Moore's on East Front street last night, and inquired of the group of men there if they had heard the name of the postmaster for Plainfield.

Everybody was attention. It was remembered that City Judge Coddington had returned from Washington, whither he had gone in the interest of Mr. John Hetfield.

There was a general chorus of answers, "No, who is it?"

Without a smile, the carrier getting toward the door, quietly replied, "Pope!"

The badly sold crowd with a roar of laughter made a rush for the carrier, but he had disappeared.

In the Justices' Court.

BEFORE JUSTICE NASH.

Justice Nash has issued summons in the contract case of Debevoice vs. Ulrich, returnable May 7th.

Trapshooters' League to Meet Here.

The next team contest of the New Jersey Trapshooters' League will take place in this city on Wednesday, May 9th, on the grounds of the Climax Gun Club.

BUNCOED OUT OF $2.

A Workingman the Victim of a Newarker Sharper.

A Newark man came to Plainfield yesterday looking for "Mr. Dickson of Plainfield street." The man said that while standing along the street in Newark waiting for something to turn up in the shape of work, he was approached by a stranger who asked him if he were looking for work. On being answered in the affirmative the stranger said that he could send him to a place in Plainfield where he could secure employment. He agreed to do this for $2. Being anxious to get something to do the sooner for work managed to borrow $1, which he paid over to the stranger, who gave him a piece of paper bearing the above mentioned name and address.

Being unable to find the person mentioned and finding even the name of the street to be a fictitious one, he came to the conclusion that he had been buncoed.

The man returned to Newark "a sadder but wiser" individual.

BREVITIES.

—"Arrah Na Pogue" at Music Hall to-night.

—There was a club dance at the Casino last night.

—Thursday will be Ascension Day, according to the church calendar.

—More whist games in the Park Club series will be played at the Park Club to-night.

—There was a ball at Berkeley Heights last evening. A number from this city attended.

—The front of Mr. U. B. Crane's store, on West Front street, has been brightened by a fresh coat of paint.

—Iona Council will hold a meeting to-morrow night. Under the good of the order there will be a "peanut hunt"

—One Sunday cider-selling place on Somerset street, was closed at noon Sunday, by order of the North Plainfield authorities.

—The regular meeting of the McAll Auxiliary will be held at the Public Library Wednesday morning, May 2d, at eleven o'clock.

—The Masons and Bricklayers will meet to-morrow evening. The election of officers will take place on the first Wednesday in June.

—Neighbors of Mr. McCarthy say that it will be worth the price of admission to the entertainment at Music Hall to-night to "hear the mule bray."

—A wheel of a farmer's wagon was wrenched off on the street railway track on West Front street Sunday night. The farmer belonged in South Plainfield.

—The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet at Elizabeth on Thursday afternoon. The newly-elected members will take their seats at this meeting.

—The temporary board front in the Babcock building that shut off from view the stores, has been removed from in front of the store to be occupied by Mr. Edsall.

—Sunday afternoon, David Kenney's wagon collided with one belonging to Mr. D. S. Roberts, on North avenue. One of the hind wheels of Roberts' wagon was wrecked.

—A new foundation wall was placed under the front of the store, No. 210 Park avenue to-day. The building has never had such a support but has been held up by timbers. It belongs to Mrs. Randolph.

—Workmen are to-day finishing the work of grading around the new school building on Somerset street. The surplus dirt has been carted away, improving the appearance of the grounds very much.

—A certain young man riding about town yesterday afternoon with a large cow-bell tied to the saddle of his bicycle, offered much amusement to passers-by. The cause of the strange proceedings was a wager.

—A catch of 70 fish was made by Frank Hedden, Edward Van Winkle and Theo. Van Nest in the brook in Lane's swamp last night. It was Mr. Van Winkle's first experience in that line but he speared suckers with the deftness of an old-timer.

—L. B. Coddington took a load of furniture, weighing nearly three tons, to Hoboken last night. It belonged to Mr. A. Rumpf of Vine street, North Plainfield, and the destination was 218 Washington street Hoboken, where Mr. Rumpf and family will permanently reside. On the way back he will move a family from Newark, due here at seven this evening.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

COXEY'S ARMY STOPPED.

Safety of White House and Treasury Looked to.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—A perfect day with bright shining sun, which Citizen Coxey took as a propitious omen, was the portion of the army of the Commonweal for its demonstration in favor of the Coxey Good Roads bill.

The parade reached the city limits at 11.30 o'clock.

It was not permitted west of Fourteenth street at the instance of the President, who thought it inadvisable to hazard a possible demonstration by some crank in front of the White House or Treasury building.

Coxey wanted to pass these two points, but Major Moore firmly insisted on the Fourteenth street line of march.

Broke Loose from a Post.

David Long of Mt. Pleasant tied his horse to a post on East Second street last evening, while he went into a nearby store. The horse became frightened, broke the bridle, and started on a run, but was soon captured and brought to bay.

—Flagging is being laid in front of the Babcock building.

THE LEGISLATURE.

WHAT IS BEING DONE BY BOTH BRANCHES.

Bills Passed and Introduced in Senate and House—Mr. Anderson Reported to Have Withdrawn from the State Prison Supervisor Contest.

TRENTON, N. J., May 1.

Both houses of the Legislature met last night and passed upon several measures.

SENATE.

BILLS PASSED.

Senate 173, 174, 175, 176, repealing the act and various supplements thereto, of 1891 and 1893, gerrymandering the Assembly districts of the State; substitute for Senate 12, provides for the election of Assemblymen by counties in line with the Supreme Court decision; Senate 146, authorizes State Boards of Health to make an abstract of all the previous health reports and to publish them in pamphlet form; Senate 158, allows changing name of county insane asylum and provides that insane persons contained therein are liable for their own maintenance whenever they come into property.

RECOMMITTED.

Senate 62, creating a State Water Board to supply water to municipalities, was recommitted to give a hearing to parties interested in private corporations, who claimed that their interests would be jeopardized by the passage of the bill.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 214, Mr. Ketcham, provides that Municipal Boards having charge of city hospitals may issue bonds for the erection of new buildings, or the repair of old ones, whenever the present ones may be deemed unsanitary.

No. 215, Mr. Voorhees, makes it a misdemeanor for a person to accept money from another, with intent to defraud, upon promise or agreement to procure for such person employment or a loan of money, or anything of value.

No. 216, Mr. Stokes, (for the President,) gives extended powers to traction companies formed under the act approved March 14, 1893.

No. 217, Mr. McMickle, authorizes the Comptroller to grant licenses to sell liquors to corporations engaged in transportation by steamboats, cars or vessels through the State. License to run one year and cost not less than $50.

No. 218, Mr. Miller, amends act relative to sale of lands under public statutes.

HOUSE.

BILLS PASSED.

Senate 164, vests the custody of the State House and public grounds with the Comptroller and State Treasurer, with power to appoint a custodian and an assistant, at salaries of $2,000 and $1,800 respectively; Senate 145, provides for the payment for the digest of the laws of chancery on its completion, to the estate of Bennington F. Randolph; Senate 189, provides for the appointment of a law judge for Burlington county; House 456, fixes the term of City Attorney in third class cities at three years.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 509, Mr. Edwards, provides that in contracts for sale of land when the installments are not paid when due. A five years' extension of time may be granted, or 75 per cent of the total amount already paid may be returned.

No. 510, Mr. McEwan, amends the act concerning the settlement and collection of arrearages of unpaid taxes, assessments and water rents in cities.

No. 511, Mr. Olcott, makes it unlawful for any township or board of commissioners to contract for public lighting for a longer period than five years.

No. 512, Mr. Glaspell, amends the drainage and sewerage act in cities.

No. 514, Mr. Beekman, supplement to an act concerning costs.

No. 515, Mr. Stover, repeals the act under which court interpreters is appointed in second class counties.

No. 516, Mr. Stover, similar to foregoing as applying to salaried interpreters.

No. 517, Mr. Zabriskie, provides that a judgment of ouster in quo warranto proceedings shall operate into facts to install the relator in the office contested for, and no writ of error shall operate as a stay of such judgment.

It is reported that Major Anderson has decided to withdraw from the contest for supervisor of the State Prison because of the opposition of Senator Skirm.

Dandy Still Has Many Tricks.

"Dandy" the spotted pony left here by the Bristol show for board, is now in possession of L. B. Coddington. The pony is well trained, and can graze at its leisure through the day, always returning to his stall at night. The pony has one peculiarity and that is that a woman or child can sit on his back with perfect safety, while if a man or boy tries to [illegible] him, the rider is sure to be thrown.

Literary Note.

Eleven of the sixteen attractive stories which Romance presents in its May number are either written expressly for it or are original translations. Among these are the leading tale, a society story, in the fresh setting of Central Park in May, by Rhodes Macknight; and a group of three admirable specimens of the realistic style of fiction.

Will Open Both Stores Saturday.

Mr. F. M. Hulett, the music dealer of West Front street, has been compelled to close his store until Saturday for repairs, while he is having his additional store adjoining fitted up. Mr. Hulett will be prepared to open both stores with a fine stock of pianos on Saturday.

—Only Beecham's Pills cure constipation.

For dyspepsia and all other conditions resulting from constipation, go by the book on Beecham's pills.

Book free, pills 25c. At drugstores; or write to B F Allen Co, 365 Canal st, New York.

Bicycle Notes.

Of course everybody will go to see the Irvington-Milburn race on May 30th. The race will commence at 11 a. m. sharp. The entrance fee is $2.00 and all entries will close May 16th.

The Elizabeth Journal trophy race, 10 miles open to all clubs in Union County, will be held on the afternoon of June 9th, at 5 o'clock over the Morris avenue course (road leading from Elizabeth to Springfield.) This race will be a very exciting one, as the E. W.'s and E. A. C.'s have both entered fine teams. The entries close on May 30th, the fee being $6.00. The teams will consist of six men each. Judging from the training these are now having it will doubtless be one of the fastest races ever held in the country.

On June 2d, the Crescent Wheelmen will open their new track by a list of events as follows:

Class A.—One mile novice; one mile scratch; two thirds of a mile scrath, two thirds of a mile scratch, (for boys under 18), two mile handicap, one mile scratch.

Class B.—One-third of a mile scratch, one mile scratch, one mile handicap.

A Swedish Women's Club.

There is in Philadelphia a Swedish women's club whose members make it a practice shortly before Christmas to go to the wharves and sailors' boarding houses, where they look up all the Swedish sailors and invite them to a Christmas dinner. At this feast the two dishes without which no Christmas dinner in Sweden is complete are prepared for the guests—namely, risgreynsgrot (rice porridge) and leit fisk (codfish), simple dishes, truly, but doubtless arousing sweetest memories to give zest to the meal. The idea of this kindly deed was suggested to one of the members of the club by hearing of an English lady who lived in Bergen, Norway, and who was in the habit of inviting the English sailors in that port to a regular English dinner of roast beef and plum pudding.—New Century's Working Woman's Journal.

To Make a Rag Doll.

Begin with a pair of old white stocking legs. Lay these on the table and draw the outline of a doll, all in one. Then cut it out, turn it on the wrong side and stitch on the machine, leaving it open from the shoulders up. This allows for the stuffing of hair or batting. The former gives more body to the doll. Stuff well, plumping out the figure, even to the toes. When the head is smoothly filled, overhand the edges with strong thread. Then the hair, either brown or yellow silk, may be added, and the eyes, brows, nose and mouth drawn with ink or pencil. It is better not to place beads for eyes, as the child is likely to pull them off and swallow them. Try making a rag doll in this way and see if it doesn't hold a more honored place in the nursery realms than the costliest bought toys.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A MOMENT OF SWEET RELEASE.

It Comes When a Woman Doffs Street Dress For Dressing Gown.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

A woman may declare as much as she likes that her ordinary costume does not cause her any discomfort and may thrust both fists up under her bodice to prove that in spite of its wrinkleless fit it is too large for her, and the skeptical observer may be staggered by this feat. But Dr. Charles Reade exposed the fallacy of that demonstration long ago, and the woman feels, although she doesn't admit it, that the moment when she exchanges her public attire for her dressing gown is a moment of sweet release. It has been confidently stated for many years past that literary ladies wear their dressing gowns all day, and although this is not known positively to be a fact it is safe to take it for granted that if a woman is the author of a particularly meritorious article, poem or novel she wrote it under the fostering influence of the dressing gown.

ROSE COLORED DRESSING GOWN.

Thin wrapper flannel is the most suitable goods for this garment. It comes in plain tints, stripes, plaids and figures, through the entire gamut of colors. Delicate tones are usually preferred, both for dressing gowns and for the comfortable little breakfast jackets so much worn. The latter are made with a fitted back and loose front, and when they are trimmed with a fluff of lace around the shoulders and a knot of ribbon here and there they are as pretty as anybody need desire.

Pongee is a good material for a summer dressing gown, although it is better to have a flannel one at hand all the year round. The pretty blue and white Japanese cottons are also utilized for this purpose, made up in the fashion of kimonos. These have the additional merit of being washable, and they are certainly picturesque.

A sketch is given of a dressing gown made of rose colored flannel. It has a fitted watteau back and a loose front with a gathered yoke outlined above the bust by a band of black and gold galloon. Gathered epaulets bordered with galloon fall over the tops of the bishop sleeves. At the wrist the sleeve is gathered into an open cuff, from which falls a flounce of the flannel. A belt of galloon, beginning at the under arm seams, confines the fullness of the front of the gown.

"A Yankee in Gray."

This is the title of the story now running in THE NEWS, Wednesdays and Saturdays alternately. It is the story of a northern man who "went with" his adopted State of Virginia, and wore the gray of the confederacy. The tale is novel in theme and treatment, and is full of dramatic situations and powerful character drawing. This wonderful story is

TURPIE IN A TANTRUM.

Treated Aldrich to a Violent Tongue Lashing.

SENATE LISTENED IN AMAZEMENT.

An Exciting Climax to a Day Bristling With Sharply Worded Passages at Arms Over the Tariff Bill—The Minority Stirred Up the Majority Very Successfully.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Democratic side of the senate was goaded almost to desperation by the exasperating prodding of the leaders of the opposition. The interesting fencing which began last week was continued, but the rapiers were sharper, the lunging more vicious and the thrusts directed at more vital spots. The Republicans, led by Senator Aldrich, assumed the aggressive at the outset, using the recent newspaper reports of radical changes agreed upon by the Democrats in secret conference as weapons with which to harass and irritate them.

Their success was admirable. During the day almost every prominent Democrat on the floor was forced to defend himself. Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, was finally driven to making a statement in which he utterly repudiated the reports about radical modifications of the bill and declared himself unalterably hostile to concessions to the protected interests, especially to the various trusts that are seeking increases.

Turpie's Attack on Aldrich.

Toward the end of the high tempered debate, which began when the senate opened, the lie was bandied with a freedom that was quite startling in the dignified senate, and the climax was reached when Senator Turpie of Indiana launched a terrific assault of a most personal character against Senator Aldrich.

In opening he referred to the record of the meeting of the finance committee which had been read during the day by Senator Voorhees. This, he said, furnished complete evidence that as far as this bill was concerned Mr. Aldrich had undergone all the anguish of paternity. The present cries from the other side that they had not been accorded the regular opportunity to consider and offer amendments in committee lacked foundation in fact. They came too late. The bill had been before the senate two months. If there was ground for the objections now made, they should have been made long ago. Three monstrous untruths had characterized the opposition—three gross, palpable lies of inconceivable mendacity. He had no objection to parliamentary obstruction if it was not based on deliberate falsehood, as this was.

The first of those untruths was that a new bill was being prepared by the secretary of the treasury; the second was that three or 300 amendments (it did not matter which) were to be presented, and the third was that the bill reported from the finance committee was not the bill that was to be passed. All these assertions had been denied, categorically denied, by four Democratic members of the finance committee.

"And yet," continued Mr. Turpie, raising his hand and stretching it toward Mr. Aldrich, "the senator from Rhode Island comes in here and says he believes they are true. There could be no sharper issue of veracity. I prefer to believe and I do believe the senators on this side, and I disbelieve the senator—no, I will not say senator—disbelieve the diminutive unit on the other side who asserts the contrary. Who is the author of these reports that are being circulated here and in the newspaper press? Who claims the paternity? The senator from Rhode Island," said he emphatically, answering his own questions.

Ironical Personalities.

"I recollect the predecessor of the honorable senator from Rhode Island," he continued, with biting and venomous irony, referring to the Senator Aldrich of 1890 as a different individual from the Senator Aldrich of today, "but even he could not then have been the author of all three of these untruths. He might have been the author of one, but three would have driven him from the field. He had been a drug clerk and was thoroughly familiar with all that line of business and of other lines as a wholesale grocer. We who were here then will never forget the writhing of his distinguished countenance, his enormous development of cheek that extended from ear to ear and from chin to forehead. He would not have surrendered either chips of cheek a few days ago. We will never forget his auricular appendages that scraped the dome of the capitol.

"How can the present senator hope to rival his predecessor in the hate of truth and in the love of falsehood that have always characterized the cheats of protection?"

When Mr. Turpie sat down, there was a hush upon the chamber. Every one was amazed at the personal character of the attack upon Senator Aldrich. Then all eyes were turned on the Rhode Island senator. He arose slowly. "In the position the senator from Indiana now takes," he said slowly and deliberately, "he speaks for no one but himself. Under other circumstances and conditions I do not believe he would have made the speech he has made."

Mr. Aldrich took his seat. The incident closed without another word, and Mr. Quay took the floor and resumed the prepared speech he began some weeks ago. Within a few minutes, however, a motion to adjourn was made, and the Democrats suddenly found themselves without a quorum. Mr. Harris threatened to order the sergeant-at-arms to send for absentees if this occurred again, and Mr. Cockrell gave notice that the law of 1857 to dock senators' salaries should be enforced to compel the attendance of senators. On the whole it was a very interesting and at times exciting day.

The house finally concluded its consideration of the army appropriation bill and passed it with the amendments adopted just before adjournment. During the morning hour the resignation of Representative Caldwell of Ohio was laid before the house. Almost the entire day was devoted to the consideration of amendments of an unimportant character.

Indigestion and Sick Headaches Also Relieved.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla since last December for indigestion, catarrh and sick headache, and it has made me feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking it I did not have any appetite and for years I had to be very careful about my diet. Now I can eat any kind of food without any distress afterwards. I had a severe case of catarrh, and this with my indigestion brought on frequent attacks of sick headache. They bothered me very much. But since taking several bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla

TWO PUBLIC MEN GONE

Senator Stockbridge Dies Suddenly In Chicago.

EDITOR FRANK HATTON'S DEMISE.

The Michigan Senator Had Been Ill, but His Death Was Not Expected—Mr. Hatton's Friends Thought He Was on the Road to Recovery.

SENATOR STOCKBRIDGE.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Senator Francis B. Stockbridge of Michigan died suddenly at the residence of his nephew, J. L. Houghteling, while seated in a chair in his sleeping room. Three weeks ago Senator and Mrs. Stockbridge came to Chicago from their home in Kalamazoo, Mich., intending to go to the Pacific coast to visit the California fair. The senator was taken suddenly ill, however, and remained here. One week ago there was a change for the better, and the senator and his wife began to talk about returning to Michigan, and a day was set for the return. It was, however, postponed, as the senator improved so slowly.

Last evening the senator was left alone in his room with a nurse, the other members of the household being at dinner. At about 7:30 he was suddenly attacked with pains in his left side.

The nurse at once called the family from the dining room, and Mrs. Stockbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Houghteling were quickly at his side. Within a few seconds after they reached him the senator became unconscious and sank rapidly. Physicians were hastily summoned, and restoratives were applied, but it was of no avail. The senator sank rapidly and in a very short time breathed his last. While he had been very ill, it was at no time thought that his condition was dangerous, and his death was entirely unlooked for. A combination of heart and stomach troubles was announced as the cause of his death.

His Washington Friends Shocked.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The friends of Senator Francis B. Stockbridge were shocked to learn of his sudden demise in Chicago.

Senator Stockbridge was born in Bath, Me., April 9, 1826, and was therefore in his sixty-ninth year. He received a common school education and was clerk in a wholesale house in Boston from 1843 until 1847, when he went to Chicago and opened a lumber yard, being interested in sawmills in Michigan.

In 1851 he removed to Allegan county, Mich., taking charge of his mills; was elected to the legislature in 1869 and to the state senate in 1871; was elected to the United States senate as a Republican to succeed Omar D. Conger, Republican, for the term beginning March 4, 1887. He was re-elected in 1893, and his term of service would have expired March 3, 1899.

The Michigan legislature meets in January, when it is expected that a successor to Senator Stockbridge will be chosen. Meantime the governor will appoint some one to fill the vacancy that exists. Representative Burrows is spoken of as a prominent candidate for appointment by persons prominent in Michigan politics.

Senator Stockbridge lived in this city in the large brownstone mansion belonging to ex-Senator Sawyer at the corner of Connecticut avenue and Twentieth street. He was well liked by his associates in the senate, who admired him for his generous impulses and natural kindness of heart. Several of them, it is expected, will attend the funeral.

Editor Hatton Dead.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Frank Hatton, late editor of the Washington Post, died at his home in this city. Less than a week ago (last Tuesday afternoon) Mr. Hatton, who apparently had been in good health, was suddenly stricken with paralysis while working alone at his desk. With great difficulty, for his speech was impaired by the attack, he succeeded in summoning assistance, and was at once removed to his home.

The gravity of the case was fully realized by his friends, but some intervals of consciousness and signs of rallying, even as late as Sunday, gave hope that he might still recover. But his physicians held out little encouragement and looked for the worst.

The last fatal change was manifest Monday morning, when the dread symptoms of Bright's disease appeared. The virus spread rapidly and soon reached the heart. There was no pain, as the faculties were deadened by the destroying agent, and unconscious of the presence of his wife and son and in spite of all that medical aid could accomplish Mr. Hatton expired.

FRANK HATTON.

Frank Hatton was born in Cambridge, O., April 28, 1846. From his earliest days he was intimately connected with newspaper work, his father, Richard Hatton, being while Frank was yet a little boy engaged in the publication of the Cadis (O.) Republican. At the outbreak of the war of the rebellion he enlisted in the Ninety-eighth Ohio infantry, served faithfully throughout the great struggle as a member of the Army of the Cumberland and in 1864 was commissioned first lieutenant. When the war came to a close, Mr. Hatton naturally returned to the profession and in the town of Mount Pleasant, Ia., edited The Journal from 1869 to 1874, and then he removed to Burlington, Ia., where he purchased a controlling interest in The Hawkeye, his partner being Robert J. Burdette, the humorist.

Mr. Hatton's first federal office was that of postmaster at Burlington for some years prior to 1881, when President Arthur appointed him assistant postmaster general. In that capacity he served from October, 1881, until October, 1884.

Then the retirement of Judge Gresham from the office of postmaster general brought about Mr. Hatton's promotion to a seat in the cabinet. He continued to be postmaster general until the close of General Arthur's administration, and he was justly proud of the fact that with the exception of Alexander Hamilton he was the youngest cabinet officer in the history of the United States government.

For two years—from 1882 to 1884—Mr. Hatton had much to do with The National Republican of this city, but in the summer of the latter year he severed his connection therewith and removed to Chicago to become editor-in-chief of the Chicago Mail. In 1889 Mr. Hatton returned to this city and in partnership with Mr. Beriah Wilkins purchased the Wa[illegible]gton Post, of which he has been editor-in-chief ever since.

GEORGE GOULD'S LUCK.

Lost and Recovered a Bag of Diamonds Worth $30,000.

RONDOUT, N. Y., May 1.—When Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould were returning to New York from a few days' sojourn at Furlough Lodge, their summer retreat in the mountains, they lost a small handbag containing Mrs. Gould's diamonds and other valuables, estimated to be worth over $30,000. The bag was intrusted to the maid, and when they reached the depot at Alkville the discovery was made that the bag had been lost from the wagon.

Mr. Gould and wife took the train, and Superintendent Kestor, who was with them, hastened back over the road in search of the bag. While passing the residence of W. M. Griffin he was hailed by Mrs. Griffin and informed that she had picked up the bag. Mr. Keator promptly telegraphed Mr. Gould of the recovery and forwarded the bag by express to him. Mr. Kester gave Mrs. Griffin a generous reward on his own account, and it is presumed that Mrs. Gould will also reward her.

IMMENSE LANDSLIDE.

Miles of Solid Earth Slipped Into the St. Anne River.

QUEBEC, May 1.—A dozen lives are reported to have been lost in a terrific landslide near the village of St. Alban, situated 45 miles from here and four miles from Lachretvrotiere station, in the county of Port Neuf. The inhabitants of St. Alban heard a terrific noise resembling the roll of thunder in the distance. The soil vibrated, and a panic ensued.

Near the parish church is a curve in the river St. Anne which makes a waterfall. The ground which stays the formation of the fall on the right side gave way, and the earth and rocks filled the deep gap of the falls, burying a pulp wood mill.

Additional news from St. Anne de la Parade says the sides of the river, which are composed of clay and 150 feet high, caved in, blocking up the natural channel of the river for a distance of five miles and to a depth of 17 feet, making the water rise 100 feet above the earth walls that were supposed to hold it back.

The walls were not strong enough to keep in check the fury of the stream, and with a terrible roar and rush the water came down upon the unprotected village, carrying away the bridge. The water rose at St. Casimir and carried away another bridge at St. Anne. An hour later it carried away two piers of the bridge and all the lumber booms along with the wharves.

The house of Farmer Gauthier of St. Alban is completely buried, and the four unfortunate people who occupied it are supposed to be crushed below. At the place where the house was smothered smoke can be seen, and it is feared the house caught fire, which means sure death to the inmates that were known to have been within.

The accident has been especially severe on the dumb animals. Hundreds of cattle, sheep and pigs have perished, and amidst the wreckage that floats past the poor brutes can be seen struggling, apparently alive, and making an effort to reach the shore, which their exhaustion renders abortive.

River Noire, the exact place of the accident, is not near a telegraph station, and no information as to the number and names of the dead can yet be had with certainty. The people of all the surrounding districts are panic stricken, and on account of the altered condition of the country it is very difficult to reach the scene and return. The piece of land which slid into the river is about a mile long and four miles wide.

The latest information received is to the effect that $500,000 worth of property has been destroyed and 12 people have been killed.

American Bred Sheep Sent Abroad.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The first American bred sheep ever sent to England for exhibition were part of a cargo of the steamship Bovic. It was a consignment of four yearling rams and five ewes, which go to compete at the agricultural shows this summer. They are from the flock of Mr. G. Howard Davison, owner of Altamont stock farm at Millbrook, Dutchess county, N. Y.

Five Anarchists Must Die.

BARCELONA, May 1.—The sentences of nine of the anarchists who were tried by court martial for complicity in the attempt made last year by Pallas upon the life of Captain General Martinez Campos were announced. Five of the prisoners were sentenced to death and the four others to life imprisonment at hard labor.

A Threat to Kill Breckinridge.

PARIS, Ky., May 1.—The postmaster has placed in the hands of the judge and sheriff an anonymous letter, dated and mailed in New York, giving him fair warning not to let Colonel Breckinridge speak here on May 7 upon peril of a dynamite explosion intended to kill the congressman and all who may be near him.

No Girl Teachers For John.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The Chicago Anti-Chinese Sunday School society has passed out of existence, having accomplished its purpose. Secretary Lincton said that with one exception the religious instruction of Chinamen was now in the hands of men or matrons, and that girls would not be permitted to teach them.

Anderson May Withdraw.

TRENTON, May 1.—It looks today as if Major E. J. Anderson would withdraw from the race for supervisor of the state prison in order to relieve the Republicans from the dangerous dissensions which have arisen in their ranks.

Big Fire In Flint.

FLINT, Mich., May 1.—The village of Davison, nine miles east of this city, was visited by a conflagration that practically wiped out the business part of the town. Twenty-three buildings were destroyed.

Fireman Scalded to Death.

ST. LOUIS, May 1.—About midnight last night two switch engines drawing heavy freight trains collided in the yards of the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northwestern railroad, in the northern part of the city, wrecking the engine, killing one man and seriously injuring another. C. Brockshaw, a fireman on the "K" line, was scalded to death by steam from his wrecked engine, and Conductor Anderson was seriously injured.

Cow's Queer Appetite.

PROVIDENCE, May 1.—One of the pedigree Holstein cows owned by Professor Arnold of Lincoln died, and when an examination was made a glove buttoner was found imbedded in one lung, while the stomach and intestines contained no less than 46 articles, including a gold ring, another glove buttoner, pieces of wire and crockery, nails and an inch staple.

Hard Times Strike Canada.

MONTREAL, May 1.—Things are looking serious in labor circles in Canada. During the last two weeks the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways have become discouraged on account of hard times, the officials say, and at least 2,000 laborers all over Canada are thrown out of work suddenly Italians on Strike.

WELLSBORO, Pa., May 1.—Between 600 and 700 Italian laborers employed on the extension of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad are on strike at Gaines. Trouble is expected.

Dink Wilson's Time Short.

ALBANY, May 1.—Dink Wilson, the Syracuse murderer, will die on the 14th of May unless something unlooked for transpires to prevent.

May Day In Iowa.

RED CLIFF, Ia., May 1.—Snow is 18 inches deep here on the level, and it is still falling fast.

Newfoundland's Election Trials.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 1.—The election trials are progressing.

Weather Forecast.

Warmer, fair weather; south winds.

There's nothing SO GOOD AS Cottolene

The new vegetable shortening.
Wherever introduced, it drives lard from the kitchen, and indigestion from the household.
It has been tried by every test, and has met every requirement.
It is as much superior to lard as the electric light is to the tallow-dip.
The only question now is, will you give your family the benefits which its use bestows?

There's nothing LIKE Cottolene

In composition, in healthfulness, in flavor, or in economy.
Its success has called out a lot of imitations and counterfeits made for the sole purpose of selling in the place and on the merits of Cottolene.
Avoid them all. They are made to sell and they are a sell.
Get the genuine COTTOLENE.

Sold in 3 and 5 pound pails.

From Florida to Alaska, and between the two oceans, to accomplish which a two special trip, at an expense of $50,000, was made in a special photographic car by a corps of expert artists, the results of whose labors are now published in

GLIMPSES OF AMERICA.

No other publication can equal it for splendor of illustration, in half-tones and co'ored plates, while every scene pictured is graphicalally described, not by brief and uninteresting foot notes, but by running text, occuping as much space as the pictures. It is a work admirably planned, charmingly arranged, and satisfactorily completed, the series constituting a book of unparalled magnificence, that both illustrates and exhaustively describes all the matchless scenery of the United States and Canada.

A BENIGN INFLUENCE.

SUCH IS THAT EXERCISED BY WOMAN ON THE AFFAIRS OF LIFE.

Ideal Checks by Which She Curbs the Lawlessness of Man's Nature—Elementary Justice Demands That All Careers Be Open to Her.

Woman in the past has exercised a great and benign influence upon the world. What has been the secret of this influence? Woman is physically the weaker. Has man abused his advantages over her as despotically as the rule mentioned would lead us to expect? Has not woman had at her command influences of an ideal kind with which she has succeeded in curbing the lawlessness of men's nature and checking his attempts to overpass the due limits?

One of these ideal checks is the admiration excited by beauty. Beauty draws around the beautiful object a magical circle. It humbles pride. The strongest man becomes self diffident and is ashamed to remember his strength in the presence of a woman whom he admires.

The second ideal check is the holy regard which even a common man feels for the mother of his children. And this check becomes operative at the very time when, among grosser natures, the first is apt to grow weak. The love of parents for their offspring is inexpugnable. The father feels this love. He is a witness of the daily sacrifices which the mother makes for his children. He sees how they cling to her, how necessary she is to them, and thus she becomes necessary in a new way to him, and her power over him is strengthened by their offspring, in whom they take a common interest.

Third, what may be called the spiritual beauty of woman acts as an ideal check of the first magnitude, by which I mean the superior moral qualities revealed in woman's nature—her self abnegation, gentleness, purity.

It is true that the influence of these ideal checks is not felt by brutal men; that they do not respect their wives and the mothers of their children. But neither do brutal men respect other men, nor for that matter do they respect themselves. They readily engage in angry brawls. They hurt; they wound. They have no sense of personality. Brutal men must be restrained by the law, and they must be changed by the slow process of education and better social conditions.

Woman has been the great civilizer and educator of the race, and she has accomplished her mission not by meeting force with force, but by appealing to a higher law than the law of strength. The æsthetical and the moral elements have been prominent in the ideal of woman as it has been transmitted to us from the past. These are very precious, and we certainly desire to see them preserved.

But is the ideal of woman capable of expansion? Doubtless it is, chiefly by giving greater play to the intellectual life of women. The universities that are opening their gates to them, the colleges that are established specifically for their use, will do much in this direction. But even those women who have not had the advantage of college education are beginning to see the importance of devoting at least a part of their time daily to intellectual occupation, in order to impart more of science in the education of their children, and so that they may weight the opinions they express in general conversation with solid acquirements and careful reflection such as will inevitably command attention and deference.

The modern ideal of woman differs from that of the past in that she is no longer confined to the home, though that will ever be the center from which her influence radiates, but is permitted to take her part in the busy activities of life. I agree with John Stuart Mill in the belief that it is not desirable that married women should spend their energy in contributing to the income of the family. Wives, even if they do not earn the income, have an equal right with husbands in disposing of it. Whether we think such employment desirable or not, there are millions of women, and among them many married women, who are forced to be breadwinners, and since this is so it is but elementary justice that all careers, the higher as well as the lower, should be thrown open to them; that they should not be unduly hampered in their efforts to maintain themselves; that all the obstructions which selfishness and stupidity have placed in their path should be removed and that for equal service there should be equal pay.

Finally we may ask whether women should have a share in the government. On principle, I think, the answer must be emphatically an affirmative one. I do not agree with those who are now urging that the franchise be immediately granted to all women, to the illiterate and unprepared as well as to the educated and qualified.

If I believed that it is the right of the ignorant man to vote as he does, then I should see no way of withholding that right from the ignorant woman. But as I think it to be a great wrong that the ignorant man should be allowed to vote as he does I must consider it an equal wrong for ignorant women to vote, as they undoubtedly would. I do not see that two wrongs would make one right.

Earnest thinkers on both sides of the Atlantic are considering ways and means by which the present suffrage system may be modified, not, so as to deprive any one of the vote who has it, but so as at least to minimize the evil effects of ignorant voting, and to bring it about that to a certain degree the votes of the intelligent minority shall be weighed as well as counted.

When such changes as are foreshadowed shall have been brought about, and I believe they must come sooner than many expect, because the mischief resulting from the present system is well nigh intolerable, then the extension of the suffrage to women can no longer be questionable. By their practicable insight and sympathetic hearts they must help us to solve the difficult social and industrial problems by which we are confronted.

On all of the great political issues they have a right to be heard. What is perhaps more to the point is that we stand in the greatest need of hearing them. I believe that in working for the elevation of woman we are but working for our own elevation, for "she who out of Lethe scales with man the shining steppes of nature moves with him toward one goal. The woman's cause is man's. They sink and rise together, dwarfed or godlike, bond or free."—Professor Felix Adler.

Mrs. Caffyn.

Mrs. Mannington Caffyn, the author of "A Yellow Aster," is the wife of an Australian doctor. She had no girl playmates and no literary training. Her father objected to schools for his daughters and brought the boys and girls up on the same footing. At 16 years of age she was translating German poems, following the hounds and accompanying her father on his hunting expeditions.—Chicago Herald.

COXEY'S ARMY MOVING.

Commonwealers Start For the Steps of the Capitol.

PERMIT ISSUED FOR THE PARADE.

Coxey and His Men Will Enter the Grounds as Individuals and Try to Hold a Meeting. New Quarters Secured—Much Grumbling About the Commissary Wagons.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Early this morning the camp of Coxey's army of the commonweal was astir, preparing for the much talked of, long expected march to the steps of the capitol. About 9 o'clock the good roads army had loaded its tents into the commissary wagons, and headed by its band, with banners, horses and all its shabby paraphernalia, moved toward the city.

According to the programme, the army is to march past the White House, war department and treasury and up Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol. Nine mounted policemen were detailed by Major Moore to ride at the head of the procession. If the army attempts to march into the capitol grounds, it will be stopped and its leaders arrested if they persist. Whether General Coxey will bow to the mandates of the police or whether he desires to have himself arrested and be held up as a martyr is a question upon which he has stoutly refused to talk. Mr. Coxey saw Major Moore, the chief of police, and announced to him, as he does to everybody else, his intention of speaking on the capitol steps.

Some commonwealers intimate that when repulsed the army will disband and its members enter the grounds as individuals and then do their speechmaking under the statue of Christopher Columbus on the steps. "If they do," says Major Moore, "they will be arrested."

New Quarters Secured.

Having finished their public demonstration, the commonweal soldiers will march to a vacant lot at Second and M streets, southwest, where they will pitch their tents. The leaders announce that this will be the permanent camp of the army of peace until the Coxey bills are passed by congress. Other contingents are expected to join them there, they say. The present camp is too far from the city, and there are rumors of a disagreement between the park owners and the army leaders over the division of gate receipts. The local headquarters will be closed tomorrow night.

MAJOR MOORE.

Colonel Redstone, the bearded little man whose spirits have been drooping since he got lost in the shuffle on Sunday and failed to welcome the army to the capitol, declares that his mission will have been completed then. He claims that more than 1,000 Washingtonians have enlisted for the march. There may be local labor men in line. No one can prophecy how many or how few, though.

General Coxey has been the most followed man in Washington. His headquarters at the National hotel, where southern statesmen live, have been so crowded that the hotel men had to resort to force and perjury to clear the corridors. The meals of the Coxey family have been served in a private dining room. Mrs. Coxey arrived yesterday. The general's daughter Caroline also came from Massillon in the custody of young Jesse Coxey.

Grumbling Among the Men.

The second day of the commonweal army in Washington was spent by Commander Coxey in making arrangements with the authorities for today's demonstration, and by the men in the miserable little camp up at Brightwood in grumbling at the poor fare provided for them. Not until half past 1 was the first meal of the day served. It consisted of poor bread and worse coffee. It was freely said among the commonwealers—and their charges gained credence outside—that a very small percentage of the gate receipts taken by the reincarnated Coxey and Browne for the circus exhibition of the men finds its way back in the form of provisions or traveling disbursements. In their own vernacular, the men are beginning to aver that they are being "done," "worked" and "played."

Coxey first sallied forth to the District building under the wing of A. W. Cooke, a local sympathizer. Commissioner Ross received him pleasantly. He announced his desire to move to the new camping ground.

Commissioner Powell objected on the ground that the proximity of the old James Creek canal, with its foul odors, made the place unhealthy. "We would fumigate the grounds," said Mr. Coxey. "Besides our people are very healthy. They can stand a great deal. If you could only have seen some of the trials and tribulations they have undergone on their march here, you would not think the presence of a canal would affect them."

"How long do you expect to remain here?" asked Commissioner Ross. General Coxey smiled and chuckled audibly.

"Why, we expect to remain here until we get action on our bills. The few men that are with us are only a forerunner of what is coming. Of course, when the full strength of the army arrives, this lot will not be large enough."

Two employees were sent to the grounds to report upon the proposition, and Commissioner Ross loaned Mr. Coxey his private carriage to accompany them. Upon their return a private meeting of the commissioners was held, with the result that permission was granted Coxey to encamp by the canal on the condition that he would employ a plumber to make the necessary sanitary regulations.

From the District building Coxey went to the office of the sergeant-at-arms of the senate, armed with a letter of introduction from the chief of police to Colonel Bright. While waiting he was surrounded by a throng of autograph hunters, for whom he wrote his name good naturedly a dozen times. The autograph fiends having been banished, he said to your correspondent:

"Nothing remains to us but to make an amicable arrangement for the meeting on the steps. We will not insist on marching into the grounds, but when we reach the curb I will tell the boys to break ranks and march in like other citizens."

Will Insist on the Meeting.

"Then what?"

"Then the meeting will begin."

"Suppose the sergeant-at-arms objects?"

"He cannot object. We can hold our meeting there, as the constitution gives us a right to do. It would be another thing if we undertook to come inside the building and hold a meeting, but that we shall not do."

"You will attempt the meeting, then, in the face of official objection?"

"Yes, and regardless of the law, because of our constitutional rights."

"Suppose there should be forcible resistance by the executive authorities of the city?"

"Well, we shall not assume that there will be any forcible opposition."

Replying to a question as to whether he had received any encouragement from congress about the passage of his bills, he replied: "I have not. Congress will not act until forced to do so."

Sergeants-at-arms Bright of the senate and Snow of the house were closeted with Coxey a quarter of an hour. These officials pointed out the statute concerning meetings and processions in the capitol grounds, and in reply to his objections that the law was unconstitutional they told him that they were here to execute the law and not to construe it.

They called Mr. Coxey's attention to the fact that the law provided for its own suspension by the vice president and the speaker of the house, whereupon the commonweal leader announced his intention of seeing them.

Mr. Coxey saw Speaker Crisp late last night and asked that his men be allowed to enter the grounds of the capitol as individuals and later to assemble on the steps for the address. Mr. Crisp inquired concerning the nature of the address which would be delivered, and Mr. Coxey outlined his well known doctrines. Mr. Crisp declined to interfere with the laws concerning the use of the capitol grounds and building.

"The chief representative in congress," said Mr. Coxey as he came down stairs, "has refused to grant the rights to the American people."

Mr. Coxey went to the Normandie hotel twice during the evening to see the vice president, but Mr. Stevenson was out.

Mr. Coxey said that he would call again. Mr. Coxey's plan was to take every step to bring about his object—not with the expectation of success, but for the purpose of putting his case before the courts in the legal test which he expects. The chief of police issued a permit allowing the army of the commonweal to parade.

A score of out of town detectives from principal cities are in Washington. Altogether the formidable preparations for the reception of the poor Coxeyites have been much out of proportion to the potential lawlessness of the army, while one arrest for intoxication comprises the sum total of actual offending up to date.

Kelly Still at Des Moines.

DES MOINES, May 1.—The denunciation by the laboring classes of the action of the city authorities in the handling of the industrial army and the continued growth of sentiment favorable to Kelly kept the city officials in a turmoil all day. Mayor Hillis stated that he would go to the camp with a police magistrate, declare the army under arrest, try the men in a bunch as vagrants and sentence them to three days in jail. Then he said that he would turn the papers over to the sheriff to serve, thus shifting the responsibility onto the county.

Kelly declared that he would not walk out of town and said he expected to have a train Wednesday. His army grew rapidly during the day. Bands of men came in from all directions, and 1,573 reported for rations at night. More are coming all the time, and Kelly expects to lead 2,000 to Chicago.

The city has kept its promise to furnish but one day's provisions, but the citizens' committee sent out six wagonloads last evening and say there is sufficient food promised to keep the army a week.

The New England Army.

LYME, Conn., May 1.—When the New England industrial army invaded this little town, the 60 soldiers were somewhat jaded and worn, but the hospitable reception tendered them made them forget their sorrows and troubles. The theories of the agitators were rather astounding to the quiet country folk, and they were not quite ready to applaud the startling anathemas hurled against the general order of things by the speakers, but the auditors were amused and charitable and let the speakers orate until they stopped from sheer exhaustion.

After the meeting the people invited the commonwealers to a supper in the town hall. The invitation was accepted with thanks, and a modest repast was eaten with avidity. The city marshal had already made arrangements for the housing of the interesting visitors in the lower hall of the town house. One or two hobos of the "Weary Wilkins" type essayed to cast their lot with the army, but Mr. Swift was dissatisfied with their appearance. This morning the army started for Saybrook, across the Connecticut river.

Sweetland Reaches New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, May 1.—Sweetland's army reached here and went at once to Central Labor Union hall. Half a dozen policemen put a veto to any intended horseplay by Yale students. The Coxeyites lodged at the hall last night, sleeping on the floor. They will remain here until the Boston section of the army reaches town on Wednesday. Then, if the subscriptions taken up in the meantime are sufficient, all the New England section will go to New York by steamer. Otherwise they will foot it.

The fact that the students did not molest the army in the evening is said to be due to a notice from the Yale faculty to make no disturbance over the army under penalty of expulsion. This is in line with Dean Wayland's caution to Yale law students to have nothing to do with what he called "a vermin haunted, soap fearing set of tramps."

Captain Murray's Branch.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 1.—The Providence division of the commonweal army, 14 in number, reached here after a walk of 24 miles from South Manchester, Conn. Commander Murray reports hospitable treatment along the line and seemed pleased with his journey thus far. On arrival here they were given quarters for the night and a good supper. This morning they started for New Haven after enlisting some new recruits.

Randall's Army Starts Today.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Randall's commonweal army will start for Washington today with about 250 men in the ranks. Randall's treasury is empty, his commissary department is in no better shape, and many of his men are the reverse of enthusiastic. He will march today as far as Grand Crossing, about 12 miles from his barracks. The city council has passed an order to the chief of police instructing him not to interfere with Kelly's army when it reaches Chicago, provided that it violates no state or city laws. One week ago last night it passed an order on the chief of police to keep Kelly's army out of the city.

Discharged the Army.

PORTLAND, Or., May 1.—District Judge Bellinger ordered the discharge of the Portland contingent of the industrial army, who are charged with contempt of court in violating an injunction of the court restraining them from interfering with the property of the Union Pacific railway. Fifty-two men arraigned arose and addressed the court, saying they were not aware they were violating an order of the court and promising to obey the laws in the future. Judge Bellinger then discharged them.

Frye Gets Transportation.

COLUMBUS, O., May 1.—The Galvin wing of General Frye's army left Columbus on the Baltimore and Ohio for Benwood, W. Va., 137 miles east of Columbus. The railroad company offered to carry them at a rate of 1 cent a mile, and the trades assembly raised by subscription among the workingmen of the city about $275. Galvin obtained 45 recruits here, and the regiment numbered 210 men when it filed through the city to the depot.

Pilotboat Struck by Lightning.

BALTIMORE, May 1.—The pilotboat Calvert, belonging to this port, was struck by lightning while lying at anchor in Hampton Roads. The lightning struck the maintopmast and ran down the mast to the deck. Several of the crew were stunned, and minor damage was done to the vessel.

Yankee Sailors Die of Yellow Jack.

PORTLAND, Me., May 1.—Word was received here that Captain Bailey of the bark Rose Innes of this port died of yellow fever between Rio Janeiro and New York while the ship was at sea. The bark put back to Rio, but before she reached there the mate also died of the fever.

Gebhard Sells Some Horses.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—Frederick Gebhard having tired of his thoroughbreds at the stock farm in Lake county, the majority of the horses from that place were sold by auction in this city.

New York Fashionable Bonnet and Hats Made in Plainfield.

New York fashionable Bonnets and Hats are now being made in Plainfield, and ladies are no longer obliged to go to New York for these articles, greatly to their delight and convenience. Edsall's three New York Milliners are having a big run, although working under great disadvantages in their present quarters for want of room. They hope in a short time to be located in the new parlors in the Babcock Building, where greater facilities will be offered. Those who have patronized the Department are well pleased, both as to prices and styles, and success in the new enterprise is assured from the start. The patrons of Edsall's Millinery Department can rest assured that their neighbor's bonnet will not resemble theirs, for his milliners do not make two bonnets or hats alike. They are competent to create styles, and do not copy.

"ARRAH NA POGUE."

A LARGE AUDIENCE AT MUSIC HALL LAST NIGHT.

To Witness the Performance of an Irish Drama by St. Mary's Dramatic Association—Local Talent do Themselves Credit.

"ARRAH Na Pogue," an Irish drama, was presented at Music Hall last night by St. Mary's Dramatic Association, composed entirely of local talent in a manner that would have put many professionals on their metal. The play was given for the benefit of St. Mary's church, and it was witnessed by an audience that filled every seat in the lower part of the hall, besides partly filling the balcony. The cast of characters was as follows:

Col. Bagenal O'Grady	Mr. M. J. Cashin
Beamish McCoul	Mr. C. Guinee
Major Coffin	Mr. Wm. J. O'Connor
Sergeant	Mr. Thomas Commerford
Michael Feeney	Mr. John Whalen
Shaun, the Post, a Wicklow Carman	Mr. Chas. J. Ward
Oiny Farrell, Andy Regan, Lanigan, Pazey, — Irish Peasants	Mr. M. Higgins Mr. Charles Lang Mr. R. Delehanty Mr. Wm. Winn
Arrah Mulish	Miss May Passmore
Fanny Powers	Miss Julia Day
Katty	Miss Katie Cullen
Irish Peasant Girls	Miss M. Churchill Miss M. Dooley Miss D. Findley Miss L. Quinn.

The time of the play was laid in 1798, in Ireland.

Beamish McCoul, a leader of the rioters and a foster brother of Arrah Mulish, had become exiled into France. He returned to Ireland to be near the girl he loved, Fanny Powers, and to persuade her, if possible, to return to France with him. While in Ireland McCoul hid in the house of Arrah Mulish, to whom he gave some money he had stolen from Michael Feeney, an old Irish "process server."

Arrah, not knowing it was Feeney's money showed some of it to him and he in turn informed the British soldiers that he had been robbed and that the man who had stolen it was in Arrah Mulish's house.

The soldiers invade Arrah's home, just as Arrah and Shaun, the Post, are celebrating their marriage by a dance in the barn. The girl having promised McCoul not to reveal his hiding place, would have been imprisoned but for the noble act of her husband, Shaun, who confessed that he was the thief to save Arrah. He is tried before a court martial and sentenced to death. He escapes from the prison, however, and is not caught until McCoul returns and confesses all to save Shaun. McCoul also secured his own pardon.

The acting of Miss May Passmore, as "Arrah Mulish," brought forth words of praise from all. She took her part and played a leading role like a professional.

Of course Mr. Charles Ward, as usual, was the leading spirit of the play. He was at one time with a company and is at home upon the stage.

Col. O'Grady, Mr. M. J. Cashin, did admirably. He made a fine soldier, and commanded much dignity.

Considering that it was Mr. W. J. O'Connor's first attempt in a leading role he did very well indeed.

Mr. Commerford made a dandy sergeant.

As Michael Feeney, Mr. John Whalen, was an ideal cringing villain. His part was a difficult one but he acted with much effect.

Miss Julia Day and Mr. Guinee did well when the fact is considered that neither have taken leading parts in the plays given heretofore. At first Miss Day spoke a little low not being used to Music Hall, but as the play progressed she improved wonderfully.

Undoubtedly the hit of the evening was the "Irish break down" danced by Miss Katie Cullen and Mr. M. Higgins.

A storm of applause greeted the appearance of Mr. Daniel McCarty and his donkey upon the stage. Mr. McCarty, after taking part in the "breakdown" mounted his donkey and departed.

During the evening the following musical selections were rendered by Prof. Guttman's Orchestra:

March—"High School Cadets"..........By Sousa
Selection—"Salute to Erin"..........By Lamotte
Waltzes—From the Opera "Robin Hood"..........By DeKoven

Mr. Charles Ward was the stage manager and Mr. J. Winn the assistant.

Free Public Library.

A regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library was held last evening. There were present Messrs. A. C. Baldwin, M. W. Tyler, Rowland Cox, J. B. Dumont, E. P. Talmadge, and Wm. M. Stillman.

Minutes of the meeting of March 6, were read and approved.

Several bills were ordered paid.

On motion Miss Julia Scribner was granted the privilege of eight "teachers' cards" for the use of her school.

A communication received from Geo. Fountain was referred to the Secretary with the request that he communicate with Mr. Fountain to obtain more information.

Enjoyed a Spin to Rahway.

A party of six young men went on a run to Westfield, and from there to Rahway last evening. During the ride, five of the bicyclists collided, but no injury resulted to either riders or wheels. The party arrived home about half-past twelve.

Entertaining the Boys.

The entertainment at the old Grace church last night for the boys of the parish proved a most agreeable success. The programme consisted of vocal solos by Mr. Timmis and Fred Pope, piano solos by Miss Bidwell and Mr. Horton. All the above were very good, but what amused the boys the most were the humorous sketches by Mr. Ely. He kept them in continuous roars of laughter.

Refreshments were served, Mr. Pope furnishing the ice cream and the ladies of the church the cake. The ladies who served refreshments were Mrs. D. T. Van Buren, the Misses Morgan, Mrs. Ely, Mrs. Freeman and Miss Hariott.

Hereafter the old church will be open on Tuesday and Friday evenings for the use of the boys of the parish, where they will find games and other amusements.

Warren 1's New Officers.

The election of Warren Engine Company, No. 1, of North Plainfield, last night, resulted as follows:

Foreman—J. J. Stahl.
First Assistant Foreman—J. D. S. Anderson.
Second Assistant Foreman—B. F. Conover.
Secretary—J. D. S. Anderson.
Treasurer—S. B. Joseph.
Financial Secretary—W. T. Newman.
Engineer—P. Kellegher.
First Assistant Engineer—(No election.)
Second Assistant Engineer—W. A. Wilson.
Stoker—Thos. Melcher.
Representative to Firemen's Relief Association—L. B. Woolston.

The May Forecast.

Weather Prophet Irl R. Hicks says that May will open with April storm disturbances disappearing. An equinox is central on the third, and will cause cloudiness and tendency to drizzle. By the 4th it will change to warmer. From the 10th to the 15th is the next regular period of change and storm, and a very warm wave is apt to appear about the 11th. About the 11th, 12th and 13th heavy rains may be expected. Secondary storms will appear in many places about the 17th and 18th. From the 21st to the 25th is the next storm period. About the 27th and 28th will be central for the last disturbances for May.

A Letter from the West to Broker Mulford.

Broker Mulford's business has led him to correspond with a party in the extreme Northwest of the United States and the party living there has volunteered the following: "Times out here are frightful. It is utterly impossible to get any money. The West is completely broken. You Eastern people do not nor cannot realize it, nor do you realize the full importance of the army of men marching east—compares with the French Revolution."

Tied a Can to the Dog's Tail.

Two young men who work for a concern on Somerset street, near the notch, tied a tin can to a dog's tail, a few days ago, and watched the animal run down the street.

At Miles' green-house the dog went about, tearing up flowers and plants and creating other depredations. One of the fellows left town, when told a warrant was out for his arrest. He came back on Monday, but is keeping himself in the shade.

Great Preparation Being Made.

The ladies auxiliary of the colored Y. M. C. A. are making great preparations for the dinner party to be given at Central Hall, Thursday and Friday of this week. Mrs. Johanna Fisher, the president, with others are deeply interested in the work and are sparing no pains to make the occasion pleasant for all. A good orchestra has been engaged for the evening. A silver cup will be walked for. All are invited to attend.

The Case Adjourned for a Week.

The case of Calloway vs. the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage, a suit for wages, which was to have been tried before Justice Nodyne and a jury to-day, has been postponed for one week, by mutual consent, as the counsel on both sides have cases at Elizabeth this week. Judge Coddington is counsel for the plaintiff and Chas. A. Reed for the defense.

Wins Against 20 Defendants.

An important case brought by the City National Bank against twenty defendants was tried at Elizabeth to-day. President Chas. Hyde v. President Pope. Cashier Arnold with a great bundle of books were among the witnesses subpoenaed. Craig A. Marsh tried the case for the bank and was successful.

TO INDICT GAMBLERS.

THAT'S WHAT IS ASKED OF THE PRESENT GRAND JURY.

Charged by the Judge to Investigate the Alleged Gambling Places in the County, and to Find Indictments Against the Proprietors.

In charging the Grand jurors, yesterday, Judge Van Syckel said that if it were found that gambling is carried on in the county, indictments should be found. The crime of gambling must be suppressed. It is against the law, and where ever it is found to exist it is the clear duty of the Grand Jury to find indictments.

The following is a full list of the jurors:
John C. Rankin, Jr., foreman.
Elizabeth—Melancthon W. Reeve, Frank M. Sayre, Cornell Dunlap, Charles E. Richards, William J. Carlton, George W. Gelkins, George A. Squier, Frederick Clause, James Dillon, Peter Tag, John Driscoll.
Plainfield—Andrew Vanderbeek, Charles H. Herring, William Addis.
Summit—John A. Hick.
New Providence—Henry F. Barrell.
Fanwood—Douglas Darby.
Union—W. P. Bonnell.
Cranford—Joseph H. Severance.
Springfield—James Farrow.
Westfield—John Burrows.
Rahway—Charles B. Squier and Andrew Halliday.

On the retiring of the grand jury Judge Van Syckel called the list of causes and fixed the dates of trial.

It is probable the term will not be an extended one. On the Supreme Court calendar there are eleven cases, but several of them were announced as off for the term of agreement.

The Circuit Court list is larger and comprises twenty-six cases. There are numerous cases on the jury and justice appeal cases, but none of importance.

The Court of Common Pleas met on the adjournment of Circuit, and the applications for tavern licenses in the townships, were considered.

Judge McCormick announced that in townships of over 3,000 inhabitants the license fee will be $150 instead of $100 as heretofore. All old licenses were renewed, excepting where there were remonstrances, and in such instances they were laid over until Saturday morning, when new applications will be passed upon.

Among the old licenses granted was one to Hezekiah Hand, a constable at Fanwood who will succeed the late W. J. Lowe, the deceased tavern keeper.

PERSONAL.

Alexander Frazee came home yesterday from St. Louis.

Mr. Robert Rushmore has recently purchased a valuable horse.

M. Frank Raymond of Madison avenue started to-day for Europe.

Mr. Ballantine and family of Somerset place have moved to 87 Duer street.

Mrs. Brooks of Brooklyn has rented Mr. Westervelt's house on Sandford avenue for the Summer.

Miss Lillie Wakefield died at her home on Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, last night.

Mr. Robert Lockey, formerly of Westervelt avenue, has moved with his family to East Fifth street.

Elias Wolf, representing the firm of S. Wolf and sons of Philadelphia, is in town visiting friends on East Front street.

Mr. Garret Schenck, who has been confined to the house nearly six mon the on account of sickness, is again able to be out.

Mr. R. F. Fenno has purchased the property No. 234 Carlton avenue from Mr. F. L. Batty. The purchase was made through the Mulford real estate agency.

Miss Slape of Judge William A. Coddington's office has received her commission as a notary public. She is the second woman in New Jersey to receive a commission.

Mrs. Nancy Drake, an aged lady living at Bernardsville, died at the home of her son, Thomas Drake, on Sunday morning after a brief illness. The deceased was seventy-four years old. The funeral services were held from her late home at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Rev. Isaac Thomas, pastor of the M. E. church at Bernardsville, conducted the services.

Frank Spillane captured a black snake along the bank of Black river, near Berkley Heights, on Sunday, which measured six feet and four inches. The reptile was exhibited on the walk in front of J. P. Homan's, Somerset street, Monday, and that night Frank Randolph found it coiled up in a box near his stables. The snake was still alive, but he summarily dispatched it.

A Narrow Escape

As Mr. Robert Clark, Jr. was riding his wheel home to dinner this noon, he was nearly run down by a charcoal wagon. Mr. Clark was on the right side of the road and the charcoal wagon on the left when the driver, without a moment's warning, turned his horse aboutiv across the road.

It was only by superior management of his wheel that Clark avoided an accident.

Runaway This Noon.

A trolley car frightened a horse belonging to William Dolan, on Somerset street, this noon, causing it to runaway. The animal ran down the street to Craig place, where it turned, upsetting the wagon, breaking loose and running through to Grove street, where it was caught.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

COXEY IN A CELL.

Bail Finally Obtained for the Industrials.

WASHINGTON, May 2—At 10:15 o'clock this morning Gen. Coxey, who was in court for the Commonweal cases, was put under arrest.

Coxey, Browne and Jones were arraigned for unlawfully entering the Capitol grounds and breaking down the shrubbery.

Browne demanded a jury trial for each which was granted. The cases went over to Friday. Bail in $500 was demanded in each case.

A Somerville Minister Called.

NEW BRUNSWICK, May 2.—The First Baptists of this city last night extended a unanimous call to the Rev. Frank A. Smith of Somerville. The congregation here had not heard him preach, but the call was extended upon the recommendation of a committee of five. Salary $2,000 a year.

If he accepts the call he will succeed the Rev. H. H. Pogson. Mr. Smith is a young man, 26 years old, and has been in his present charge two years.

BREVITIES.

—The demand for Edsall's stylish millinery, he says, is largely on the increase.

—There was a cock fight at Elizabeth last night between Elizabeth and Plainfield birds.

—One of the tally-ho horses was tired out when the coach reached this city this morning.

—The Plainfield Building and Loan Association, yesterday, deeded over to Frederick and Rosa Casper, the premises at 140 and 144 East Front street.

—The fruit trees are in bloom and the country now presents a beautiful appearance. In the language of the play, Nature's wonderful panorama is now unfolding its unrivalled charms.

—The Boys' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. held an entertainment last evening. The programme consists of a piano solo by Fred Fullerton, reading by Jas. D. Joy, gymnastics by V. Christofferson, and club swinging.

—It is understood that Mr. Hugh O'Donnell, who formerly run the East Sixth stables, has purchased a place on Park avenue, Brooklyn, E. D., for $4,000, in which he intends to start his nephew and brother-in-law in business.

—John Mullen of North avenue has a copy of the "Palladium of Liberty," published at Morristown, on Thursday morning, October 13th, 1814, in which it says: "No subscriber will be discontinued until arrearages are paid up."

—The new station which the Central Railroad has contemplated erecting at Lorraine, is reported will be commenced within a month from now. It is to be situated on Dark lane, and a bridge over the tracks will also be placed there.

—About half-past twelve last night a young man came riding along Park avenue without any light in his lantern. When Policeman Frederickson attempted to stop him he explained that there was no oil in his lantern, it having burned out on the road.

—There will be a dress rehearsal of "The Grey Mare," at the Casino to-night, and will be a complete performance of the play. A few people have been invited to attend the rehearsal, but it will be entirely private. The performance to-morrow night is looked forward to with great interest.

—The Rev. S. L. Baldwin, D. D., Recording Secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, and recently a missionary in China, will deliver an address at Grace M. E. church, on Wednesday night, at eight o'clock. All friends of the church are cordially invited to be present.

The Tramp Nuisance.

The tramp nuisance along the Central Railroad is assuming alarming proportions. The highways near the track swarm with the "knights of the road" in the early morning, and there is not a piece of woods along the track between Elizabeth and Bound Brook in which there is not one or two camps every night. Washings left on clothes lines disappear, and if cellar doors are left unbarred all eatables left are stolen during the night. It is said that nearly $2,000 worth of chickens have been stolen from Union county last Winter by tramps. Efforts are being made to hold a county meeting where the matter and remedies will be discussed.

AN OLD SOLDIER IN THE LOCKUP.

A Prisoner Who Claims a Relationship with Secretary Carlisle.

William H. Carlisle, who says he is a cousin of John G. Carlisle, the present Secretary of the Treasury of President Cleveland's Cabinet, was arrested in this city last night for drunkenness.

The prisoner also stated, and he offered proof of this statement by a wound, that he was a soldier in the late War, during which he received a shell wound just over the left temple, which eventually resulted in the paralyzing of his left arm. He had also been a captive of Libbey prison.

Since the war he had worked at his trade of machinist, in Newark. Being thrown out of work he had started out through the country repairing sewing machines. Last night he drank too much liquor and the rest was a blank.

Judge Coddington let the man off with a reprimand on condition that he leave town at once.

THE LEGISLATURE.

BUSINESS DONE AT YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

Senator Voorhees Nominated for Circuit Judge.—The State Prison Inspectorship Fight.—Abolishing Lay Judges.

TRENTON, N. J., May 1.—At the caucus yesterday afternoon Skirm reiterated his treat to resign if he could not have his way, while Senator Thompson refused to consent to Anderson's withdrawal.

The name of Senator Voorhees of Union county was sent in by Governor Werts yesterday as Circuit Court Judge. When the law concerning Circuit Court Judges was enacted last year, the Governor appointed to office Judge Childs to serve in Essex county and Judge Miller to act in Camden. The law provides for three Judges, but the third appointment was not made until yesterday.

The understanding on the part of the Governor is that, should the Union Senator decide to accept the office, the appointment will not go into effect until after the close of the present legislative session. Should Mr. Voorhees accept he would be obliged to resign as Senator, and next fall an election for Senator would have to be held in Union county.

The anti-Anderson men discovered that the provision increasing the Supervisor's salary from $3,000 to $3,500 in the bill giving the appointment to a joint meeting, would prevent Speaker Holt from being chosen, as there is a constitutional clause forbidding the election of a Senator or Assemblyman to an office the salary of which is increased during the term of the member. Accordingly the bill was recalled from the Senate, and the salary put back to the figure it has always been. The bill was then again passed by the house. Republican Senators say there is no chance of the bill passing the Senate.

The Governor sent to the Senate a veto of the bill repealing the law creating Boards of Public Works in Paterson, Trenton and Camden. The Governor says the act has been in operation about two years, and the municipalities have accommodated themselves to its provisions.

The veto was to be acted upon to-day.

A bill legislating out of office John J. Matthews, the Superintendent of the School Census was passed.

Bills were introduced repealing the Collateral Inheritance law; providing for a non-partisan Board of Inspectors, to be appointed by the Governor; legislating out of office the city officers of Elizabeth, and authorizing the Governor and Comptroller to select sixty newspapers to publish the laws. A bill was also introduced by Senator Voorhees abolishing the lay Judges of County Courts and abolishing the Common Pleas, Oyer and Terminer, and Quarter Sessions Courts, which are to be succeeded by County and District Courts, the Judges of which are to be elected next November by the people.

The smaller counties are to be formed into districts, while those having 60,000 population are to constitute separate districts. Counties of over 200,000 population are to have two Judges. The salary will be from $3,500 to $6,000, and persons to be eligible to election as Judges must be counsellors and attorneys of ten years' practice.

In the House there was another fight over Eisel's bill requiring prudential insurance companies to issue paid-up policies when three years' premiums have been paid and then discontinued. By a close vote the bill was sent back to committee for amendment.

FOR WOMAN, LOVELY WOMAN.

New Fans, New Gloves and a New Coiffure With a Dragon Fly.

To the Editor of The News:—

A number of beautiful folding fans are shown this season. There is a return to the watteau fashion of delicately painted medallions depicting rural or country scenes, and the body of the fan upon which these medallions are set is of gauze or lace decorated with ornamental patterns or adorned with small spangles of gold or silver. These and fans, different in style, but similar in dainty elaboration, seem to be obtaining the ascendancy over the large ones made of curling ostrich plumes, which were not long ago the reigning favorites.

Among the pretty things shown for the neck are adjustable yokes or wide collars composed of alternate lengthwise bands of lace insertion and satin ribbon. They are pointed back and front and are trimmed with frills of lace around the edge. The feather boa is still imported and offered for sale, although it is not as much worn as formerly, which is rather a pity, as it is a graceful and picturesque article of adornment. Its place has been partly filled by the large moire cravats and pierrot ruffs. The latter appear separately as well as attached to outer garments and are made of double faced satin ribbon very thickly box plaited.

EVENING COIFFURE.

The new gloves are mainly in four button length, and suede, which once monopolized fashionable favorites, is now very properly considered more suitable for dress occasions than for everyday wear. For the street glace kid is preferred and is shown in tans, browns, grays and brick red, and also in various pronounced shades of purple and green. Long suede and silk evening gloves appear in delicate tints, with large butterflies of black or white real lace applied on the arms.

Parasols covered with fluffy frills and drapings of crape and silk muslin are as fashionable this year as they were last.

Velvet bands and ribbons continue to be worn in the hair. A sketch is given of a prettily arranged evening coiffure. A bow of ribbon having two erect ends is fastened above the carelessly waved front hair, and at the middle of the ribbon knot a dragon fly is poised. JUDIC CHOLLET.

ON A METROPOLITAN PLAN.

Mr. F. M. Hulett's New Music Parlor to be Fitted up Handsomely.

That Plainfield will have a music store that may be classed as one of the finest in the State may not be generally known, but it is a fact nevertheless. Anyone doubting this should call at Mr. F. M. Hulett's handsomely fitted up music store and piano parlor on West Front street and be convinced.

Mr. Hulett has been a most enterprising merchant and by his great push and energy he has built up a business in Plainfield to be proud of. The city also has reason to feel proud of his fine music parlors.

Desirous of giving Plainfielders no excuse for doing their buying in New York Mr. Hulett recently rented the store adjoing his own and then proceeded to fit up his place according to Metropolitan ideas.

The new store has been elegantly papered and painted, the back part has been partitioned off into a cozy rear room. This he has made into a model studio. Here Madame Fursch Madi of New York will give vocal lessons. She has pupils who come all the way from New York to her, she having recently bought a country residence within a few miles of this city. Her old pupils in the metropolis refusing to give her up will come to Plainfield to receive instruction from her. She will be at the studio on the afternoons of Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Hulett will also have teachers for all string instruments.

The front of Mr. Hulett's new store will be used for musical goods in general, while the old store will be used exclusively as a piano parlor.

An archway connects the two stores.

His stores will be open on Saturday, but he will not have his grand opening until next week.

—It is understood that after killing so many persons at the crossing at Dark lane, Lorraine, the Central railroad has at last decided to erect a warning signal at that place.

Look For the Slatterys.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., May 2.—James J. Slattery, an agent for an installment concern in this place, has been notified that he is one of 10 heirs to vast English estates valued at $10,000,000. The other heirs are John J. Slattery of Tuscarora, Frank Slattery of Hazleton, Mrs. Ellen Manning of Pottsville, Mrs. Sallie Sissinger and Daniel Slattery of Philadelphia and James Manning of Shenandoah. Thomas Slattery will sail for England in a few days.

Cruelty to the Blind Charged.

BATAVIA, N. Y., May 2.—Trouble has broken out at the New York State Institution For the Blind at Batavia. Dr. Ward B. Whitcomb, the institution physician, preferred written charges to the executive committee of the board of trustees, charging Superintendent Frederick R. Place with inflicting cruel, inhuman and unusual punishment upon some of the pupils.

Populists Make Nominations.

HARRISBURG, May 2.—The state convention of the People's Party nominated this ticket: J. T. Ailman, Juniata, governor; Jerome B. Akin, Washington, lieutenant governor; Abram Louder, Erie, secretary of internal affairs; W. M. Diesbero, Berks, auditor general; Victor A. Lotier, Montour, and H. F. Greenmann, Bradford, congressmen at large.

George W. Abell Dead.

BALTIMORE, May 2.—George W. Abell, one of the proprietors and editors of The Sun, died at his home here of pneumonia. Mr. Abell's death was entirely unexpected. George William Abell was the second son of A. S. Abell, the founder and for over 50 years proprietor of the Baltimore Sun. He was born in this city 51 years ago.

Outbreak In a Penitentiary.

SYRACUSE, May 2.—There was an insurrection at the Onondaga penitentiary. Thirty prisoners in the institution refused to eat their dinners, claiming that their food was bad. The men will be severely punished for their freak.

Yacht Puritan For Sale.

BOSTON, May 2.—It is announced that the famous cup defender Puritan will be sold at auction about the middle of this month if she is not disposed of at private sale before that time.

Millionaire Scott Sued.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—John C. Scott, the millionaire coal shipper of this city and Boston, was sued for $100,000 damages. The plaintiff is his daughter-in-law.

Weather Forecast.

Partly cloudy, with showers and probably thunderstorms in the evening; cooler in the evening; fresh west winds.

"A Yankee in Gray."

This is the title of the story now running in The News, Wednesdays and Saturdays alternately. It is the story of a northern man who "went with" his adopted State of Virginia, and wore the gray of the confederacy. The tale is novel in theme and treatment, and is full of dramatic situations and powerful character drawing. This wonderful story is Written by M. Quad.

Quad's stories are famous for humor, pathos and dramatic strength, and this one well sustains his reputation.

Be Sure and Read It!

TO BEAT THE VIGILANT.

James Gordon Bennett Orders a New Ninety Footer.

WANTS TO RACE THE BRITANNIA.

The Herreshoffs Are to Build For the Editor a Tobin Bronze Flyer Guaranteed to Be Faster Than the Last Cup Defender. A Scotchman May Challenge.

NEW YORK, May 2.—There are prospects of great yacht racing in the Mediterranean next year and also a possibility of another challenge for the America's cup. It is learned that James Gordon Bennett has given an order to the Herreshoffs for a 90 foot yacht to be built of Tobin bronze. She is to be used for international racing, and it is said that Mr. Bennett has required a guarantee from the Herreshoffs that she will beat the Vigilant.

She will be taken across the water to race, and will be especially designed to meet the Britannia, Valkyrie and Vigilant in the Nice regattas. Captain McCalmont, a Scottish yachtsman, will also have a boat in the races. He has given an order for a boat of the same class, which will be built on the other side.

Will Be a Tobin Bronze.

The Bennett boat will probably be called the Prunelle, and Captain McCalmont's boat, it is said, will be called the Tobin, for she, like the Prunelle, will be of Tobin bronze. If the captain's boat is a success, or if he is convinced that she is likely to be superior to the Vigilant and the Prunelle, he will probably challenge for the America's cup. It is regarded as almost a settled fact that the Vigilant will go to the Mediterranean for the races there next year.

Baron Arthur de Rothschild will race the same boat he did at the last Mediterranean races. Mr. Bennett has a contract with the Cramps for a new steam yacht, and it is hoped that the Atalanta will be in the Mediterranean at the time of the races, so that there may be some good steam yacht races.

It is stated on good authority that Mr. Bennett will have a racing crew of Corinthians on the Prunelle. She will have a centerboard, and the Herreshoffs will spare no expense in building her in first class condition for racing abroad.

The estimates of how much she will cost vary, some yachtsmen saying she will cost $65,000 and others $84,000. The former price ought to be nearer the facts. That was about the cost of the Vigilant, and a boat ought to be built cheaper in these hard times than it could be when the Vigilant was built.

Three Big Races.

Captain Price Hamilton, secretary of the Mediterranean international races, has given public notice that three races have been arranged for in connection with the Nice regatta in April, 1895.

Following are the conditions of each race:

The winning yacht is to hold the cup as a challenge cup, which is to become the property of the owner of the winner of two successive contests; the race to be held either at Nice in April, at Cowes during regatta week, at New York a week before or after the June regatta or when the America's cup is contested for, at Newport in August during the squadron cruise of the New York Yacht club, as may be decided by the yacht first holding it. The cup may be challenged for in the next year after it has been won by giving six months' notice.

The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Duke George of Leuchtenberg, Baron Arthur de Rothschild, James Gordon Bennett and Captain Pryce Hamilton to form the sailing committee.

A Bible and Burglars' Tools.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 2.—The officers who brought in Jake Buzzard, son of Abe Buzzard, and Hardy Hower, the alleged Welsh mountain thieves, whom they arrested in Reading, claim to have the most convincing proof against Abe Buzzard, the so called reformed outlaw, who is in jail here on suspicion. Constable Pyle says he secured Abe Buzzard's satchel, and in it he found a Bible, a pistol, a chain, a set of burglars' tools and some tickets to Buzzard's lecture on "Ruin and Reformation."

Think a Woman Killed Gibbs.

BUFFALO, May 2.—The police have no statements to give out respecting the Gibbs mystery, but from mysterious conferences at headquarters it is believed that they have an important clew. Latest developments serve only to confirm the opinion that some woman in the fashionable circles was the direct or indirect cause of the murder and to confine its authorship to a radius not far from the spot where it was committed.

The Strike at Centralia.

CENTRALIA, Ills., May 2.—The strike in the mines here is complete. The operators have not been conferred with, and no grievance has been submitted for adjustment. About 1,200 individuals—men, women and children—are without means of support. There is no disturbance.

Coal Creek Miners Stop.

JELLICO, Tenn., May 2.—All the miners at Coal Creek have quit. Their contract expired yesterday. There is no mine working in district No. 19, which includes Coal Creek, Jellico, Laurel and the Cincinnati Southern road region except at Rockwood, Tenn., and possibly at Mingo, Ky.

Two Men In a Burning Mine.

ASHLAND, Pa., May 2.—The Lehigh Coal and Iron company has a serious fire on its hands at No. 3 colliery, near Girardville. Gus Loped and Seber Frasy, laborers who were working in the mine, have not yet been seen, and it is feared that they have been smothered to death.

Seven Negroes Poisoned.

BUTLER, S. C., May 2.—Seven negroes, an entire family, were poisoned near Richardsonville. The doctors say there is no hope of saving any of the persons poisoned. No clew to the guilty parties has been found.

Died on a Train.

TOPEKA, May 2.—Albert M. Brower, a prominent citizen of Pawtucket, R. I., died from consumption on a Santa Fe train here while on his way home from the Pacific coast.

Miners Fatally Hurt.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 2.—John Prince and Mike Morgis, miners, were probably fatally injured by an explosion of gas in the Port Bowkley shaft.

Representative Wilson In the South.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 2.—Hon. W. L. Wilson and party will arrive here this afternoon by invitation of Governor Foster, the mayor and citizens.

Erie Canal Season Opened.

ROCHESTER, May 2.—The season of 1894 on the Erie canal has opened.

Nerves and Blood

Strengthened and Purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Scrofula Humor and Distress in the Stomach Cured.

The following testimonial comes from Mr. D. Sterling Mitzel of Winterstown, Pa., who conducts a printing office and collecting agency and is the youngest justice of the peace in the state:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful health restorer, nerve strengthener and blood purifier. For the last four or five years I have been troubled with humor and scrofula in the blood, breaking out all over my body, which caused itching and kept me from rest at night. I was also, at the same time, troubled with a which was anything but pleasant. I could not even take a swallow of water but what I suffered from distress and acidity. I did not enjoy a good meal until after I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I could see the good effects after the first few doses. I continued to use the medicine until now I have taken five bottles and feel entirely cured." D. STERLING MITZEL, Justice of Peace, Winterstown, Pa.

Sour Stomach,

CHAPTER XII.

Panic does not always follow defeat. Indeed it seldom does. A battle is a checkerboard wherein all the spots are marked with blood. The checkers are men—men lying in reserve, men on the battle lines, men charging on flanks or center.

The generals in command watch the board. If one makes a move on the right or left, the other seeks to take advantage of it. For the time being they shut their ears to the roar of battle, shut their eyes to the sight of dead and wounded. Beauregard halted at the threshold of victory at Shiloh. So with McClellan at Antietam. At Fredericksburg Lee permitted Burnside to retreat after defeat. At Gettysburg Meade did the same with Lee. Jackson had thrown himself against Shields at Kernstown on the right, on the left, on the center. He could not break the line anywhere. He left his dead along a front of a mile and a half, but the sacrifice was in vain. It was military tactics to retreat—to fall back to a strong position and oblige Shields to attack him or give over his march up the valley. There is sometimes more generalship in a retreat than in an advance or in fighting a battle. The trains must be saved, the broken and disorganised commands picked up and re-formed, the best troops sent to the rear to stand as a bulwark between the exhausted army and the enthusiastic enemy.

Jackson left nothing behind him—artillery, wagons or muskets—worth gathering up and reporting. Most of his wounded were carried up the valley as he fell back. Shields followed slowly, and the rear guard had no fighting to do. The panic of an army, of an army corps even, is a terrible sight, but the panic of a town is something which no one can fitly describe. The news of Jackson's defeat preceded him, and when he reached Winchester it was to find a town wild with fear and crazed by terror. War was young then. In after years the old town changed hands without a tremor, gathered up the dead off its streets and buried them as part of the regular programme.

"The Yankees are coming! The town will be given up to sack! Winchester is to be burned, and women and children must flee!"

So rose the cry from house to house. Some locked their doors and rode away on horseback or in their carriages. Others left their doors wide open and took the turnpike to the south on foot, carrying whatever they had at first laid hands on as a burden. Furniture was brought out and piled in the streets and set fire to, and had not Jackson's advance arrived as it did the people of the town would have applied the torch to their own rooftrees. The Yankee soldier was popularly supposed to be without honor or pity—a ruffian who stopped at no crime. Jackson paused to refresh his men and allay the excitement. Those who had not fled decided to remain, though fearful of consequences, but the general excitement scarcely abated.

The Percys were among the first to hear of Jackson's defeat and the news that the Federal army was following him up and would soon be in Winchester. They were excited, but not terrified.

"We will remain right here, and we shall not be disturbed," said Marian to her mother. "The Federals have not burned towns elsewhere nor made war on women and children, and they will not do so here. We have no cause to be afraid."

Neither had they, but circumstances which could not be foruseen soon caused a change in the programme. Among Jackson's troops was the remnant of the Shenandoah guards. All the house servants about the Percy mansion were colored people and slaves. Like others of their color, the general excitement had made them half crazy. They had left the house for the street to see and hear and were ready to catch up and believe the most absurd tales. There were two men and four women. Buck, who was a young man of 25, joined a party of the fleeing inhabitants hurrying up the valley. Uncle Ben, as he was called, was a man of 50, born and reared in the Percy family, and though sharing to some extent in the general excitement he would not leave his post of duty. He had said to the female servants:

"I nebber dun did see no Yankees in all my life, but I hain't gwine to be afraid an run away. I didn't bring on dis wah. I hain't killed nobody. What dem Yankees want to hurt me fur? Miss Marian hain't skeered. Her modder hain't skeered. If dey hain't skeered, what yo' all want to be skeered fur?"

The four women were on a street corner in a group when Captain Wyle passed by and recognized them as belonging to the Percy family. He had heard from the gossips of the town long ago that Kenton was to carry off the prize. He had written to Marian with considerable fervor and without mentioning the news, and she had replied in a very brief and formal manner. To revenge himself on a woman was quite foreign to his nature, but as he saw the four servants and noted their state of alarm he remembered that he and Ike Baxter had a plan to carry out. Ten minutes later one of his company was saying to the colored women:

"The Yankees are only a couple of miles away! If you all don't hurry, you will be taken prisoners, and that means that every one of you will be burned at the stake! They shoot down white folks and burn niggers!"

That was sufficient to start them off to join the fleeing throng. Not one of them returned to the house. Jackson sent out couriers to advise the panic stricken people to return, but hundreds had gone too far to be overtaken. Among them were the four women. Shields entered Winchester without opposition. Within an hour the excitement had subsided. The Yankee soldiers had neither horns nor hoofs. No one was molested nor made afraid. Where timid women requested it guards were placed at their doors, and instead of the merchants being robbed and ruined, as most of them had fully expected, their properties were safely cared for.

"Didn't I dun told you all so!" exclaimed Uncle Ben on the street that evening as he was out looking for the missing servants. "Yankees am jist de same folks as anybody. I'ze bin lookin at heaps of 'em, an I can't see no difference. All dem folks who got skeered an run'd away was fools! Yankees hain't gwine ter hurt nobody onless yo' unbehave yo'self fust!"

Captain Wyle knew where to find Ike Baxter's wife. She had moved into town two weeks before, leaving the farm to take care of itself. That was one of the points in the plan presented by Ike and accepted by her. She knew that Jackson had been beaten and was on the retreat, but she did not know of the fate of Ike and many of his comrades. Some of those who escaped both death and capture had seen Ike go down, and it was certain he had fallen into Federal hands. Mrs. Baxter fell to sobbing as she heard the news from the captain, but her sorrow did not last long.

"Drat that Ike fur a fool!" she suddenly exclaimed as grief gave place to indignation. "Didn't he un promise me last thing befo' him went back that if him ever got into another fout he un would scrouch down so the bullets would fly over him! It's all in him—allus wantin and hevin his own way spite of all I kin do!"

"Ike and the others would have been all right if they had not been betrayed," observed the captain.

"Shoo, that's what Ike was afraid of! Was it that Yankee agin—that Lawyer Kenton?"

The captain nodded his head.

"Ike hates him. So do I. If he un hadn't stood in Ike's way, Ike would hev bin a gineral befo' this. The onery skunk, to betray his own comrades! If I could git hands on he un, I'd kill him! I'll never rest till I hev his life, even if Ike lets up!"

"Have you seen the—the Percys lately?" asked the captain as Mrs. Baxter got ready for another wave of sorrow.

"Did Ike tell yo'?" she whispered.

"Partly."

"I've bin tryin to do as we planned, but couldn't fetch it. Ike thought as I might get a place in the house, but they uns hev got too many niggers fuh that."

"All their women have cut and run—not one left. If you should happen to offer your services there now, I think they'd be accepted."

"Shoo, nigger women all gone?"

"I know it for a fact."

"I'll go over thar this very hour!" said Mrs. Baxter as she reached for her sunbonnet. "Capting, was Ike right when he said this yere Yankee stood in his way?"

"Yes, he was."

"Was he right when he said if we uns could get the Percy gal to hate him he would bother nobody no mo'?"

"Yes."

"If the Yankee was shot or killed or sunthin, would Ike ride around on a critter and dangle a sword?"

"It's quite likely. What plan have you got?"

"Jest leave that to me! Mebbe I haven't got any, and mebbe I've got a heap of 'em!"

"Here is what you are to remember," he said as he rose up to go. "If it hadn't been for Kenton, not a man in our company would have been killed or captured."

"Would Ike ride around on a critter and dangle a sword?"

"And what becum of he un?"

"Oh, he was captured, too, but of course that was all a trick. However, I don't want you to say anything as coming from me. You needn't even say you have seen me."

"I understand. Ike said yo' was after the gal too. I hope yo'll git her. Do yo' reckon Ike was killed?"

"I'm quite sure he wasn't."

"Then I'll see him agin?"

"Yes, after a bit."

"Pore, pore Ike!" wailed the wife as her apron went up to her eyes. "He had his streaks—he was shiftless—but he never complained. He was onery about some things, but good as pie about others. He wasn't wuth shucks at farmwork, but as fur knowin all about mewls, why"——

She looked up, but the captain had disappeared.

CHAPTER XIII.

Jackson retreated no farther than Strasburg. Shields advanced no farther than Winchester. Prisoners captured during the first year of the war were not held long. Within 30 days from the battle of Kernstown those members of Captain Wyle's company who had been taken prisoners were exchanged. Ike Baxter was among them.

Two days after the battle Kenton had reported to his company at Strasburg. It was known that he was captured with the others, and his truthful story of his escape found no believers except Steve Brayton. While the others declared that his escape was all arranged for by his Yankee friends, Steve gave him his hand and said:

"It's gettin purty hot fur yo' around yere, Kenton, 'cordin to what I see and hear. If yo' could surround and captur' a hull Yankee army and turn it over to us, the boys would think yo' un hed some game to play. Reckon yo' know whar it all starts from?"

"I think I do."

"Can't no two fellers love the same gal without sunthin bustin sooner or later. I kin jest shet my eyes and see what the captain is layin fur. He un's achin powerful bad to hev yo' killed off or drivout or used up in some way. He wouldn't hev minded if half of us had bin wiped out down thar if yo'd bin one of the dead."

Two or three days after Jackson reached Strasburg Captain Wyle had an interview with him. None of his own company knew it, and what passed could only be inferred from circumstances which developed later on. It was announced that it had been decided to reorganize the guards as a cavalry company, and in the course of a week this change was effected, much to the satisfaction of the men. Just as it was finished Royal Kenton was ordered to report to Jackson again. He found the same stern, low spoken, plain looking man and received the same quiet greeting. The general adverted to the bravery of the guards at Kernstown, and then to Kenton's capture and escape and asked for the details. The latter at once realized that some one who professed to know all about it and who was seeking his injury had reported to the general. He, however, proceeded to give the particulars not only of his escape and his efforts to rejoin his command, but of the charges brought against him by Ike Baxter and the interview with General Shields. This portion of his adventure he had not spoken of to any one on rejoining his company. Jackson seemed to be thinking very seriously as Kenton talked. The facts just related no doubt surprised him and perhaps gave a different turn to affairs. After awhile he said:

GREAT NORTHERN UNTIED.

The Strikers Won a Big Victory and Secured All Their Demands.

ST. PAUL, May 2.—After being tied up for 18 days almost completely from end to end the Great Northern railway system will now resume work, the great strike having been declared off. It is practically a victory for the American Railway union and President Debs, although the committee from the commercial bodies of the two cities was largely responsible for the result.

The governor had tried mediation, suggesting arbitration, but his action did not meet with success, and two other similar attempts to bring about arbitration failed, the union leaders claiming that their demands were just and did not admit of arbitration, although they finally said they were willing to have the matter submitted to the citizens' committee and would be governed by its decision.

Various conferences were held by the committee with President Hill and the labor leaders. Mr. Hill was pronounced in favor of arbitration all along and agreed to any system of arbitration if the men would resume work.

Finally the committee got them to meet, and the result is that the strike has been declared off, and the men will return to work at once. The conference went over all details thoroughly, and Mr. Hill made great concessions to the men, the result being that the whole difficulty was settled then and there. It was settled really by arbitration, the citizens' committee being the judges, but the strikers gained all their demands, while the company secured a settlement through arbitration, as President Hill desired. The 4,500 miles of track will be opened by over 5,000 employees, and the entire northwest will be released from the freight and passenger blockade that has oppressed it for over two weeks.

BOTH HOUSES ADJOURNED.

No Business Done on Account of the Death of Senator Stockbridge.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The death of Senator Stockbridge stopped the wheels of legislation, and nothing was done in the senate but to receive the announcement of his death from Senator McMillan and adopt the resolutions of regret. Then the senate adjourned.

The house was in session an hour and a half. No business was transacted, although a bill to change the methods of accounting in the treasury department was under consideration. On account of the demonstration of Coxey's army on the plaza of the capitol it was deemed advisable to hold the house in session until it was over, lest a sudden adjournment might be misconstrued.

To accomplish this the senate resolutions announcing the death of Senator Stockbridge were held back over an hour.

After the crowd in front of the capitol had dispersed they were formally presented. Appropriate resolutions were then adopted, and a committee was appointed to attend the funeral, after which the house adjourned as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

CHINAMAN RAN AMUCK.

An Exciting Incident on the Steamer City of Peking.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 2.—The steamship Empress of China, just arrived, reports that the City of Peking, shortly after leaving San Francisco for the Orient on her last trip, was the scene of an extraordinary occurrence. A Chinaman ran amuck in the saloon, where lady passengers and children were seated. The fellow stabbed a boy in the shoulder and right hand. Chief Engineer McClure interfered and was wounded seriously in the leg.

The man then rushed viciously at a fellow passenger, Lee Shong, and nearly severed his head from the body. Lee Shong immediately expired. The crazed Chinaman was finally seized by the main deck watchman and placed in irons.

When the Peking reached Yokohama, the prisoner was ordered to the deck for identification. His irons being removed, he seized a bar and nearly brained the chief officer and then tried to kill himself. The first officer was very seriously hurt, but will recover. The Chinaman will be brought back to California for trial.

Work For Governor Flower.

ALBANY, May 2.—Governor Flower gave out a statement of bills left in his hands by the legislature just adjourned. The total number is 297—one of the largest number of bills ever left in the hands of the executive of this state. There are many very important measures among that number.

A Social Purity Prayer.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—The Social Purity alliance of this city has framed a memorial to congress praying for the expulsion of William C. P. Breckinridge from membership in the house of representatives.

All Quiet In Sicily.

ROME, May 2.—Dispatches from Massa di Carrara and other places in Sicily this morning reported everything quiet. The shops were opened as usual, and no disorder was threatened.

One Overworked Plumber.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 2.—All but one plumber in the city is out on a strike. They demand a nine hour working day and refuse to work until it is conceded.

COXEY WILL WAIT NOW

No More Attempts to Speak on the Capitol Steps.

MARSHAL BROWNE IS OUT ON BAIL.

Christopher Columbus Jones Spent a Dismal Night In a Police Station Cell—Commonweal Army Awaits Reinforcements In Its New Quarters.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The march of Coxey's commonweal army, which started from Massillon, O., on Easter Sunday, that its leader might speak from the steps of the capitol in advocacy of his bills for non-interest bearing bonds and for giving work to the unemployed on public roads by an issue of legal tender, ended, as might have been predicted, in interruption by the police.

Fortunately and remarkably enough, there were no casualties, and today General Coxey has his burlesque army in camp. Marshal Carl Browne occupied a police station cell for a time, and Christopher Columbus Jones, leader of the Philadelphia commune and the comedian of the movement, endeavored to appropriate a share of the martyrdom in an adjoining cell.

The performance which was enacted within the shadow of the capitol is without a counterpart in the memory of Washingtonians. Over the broad, smooth plaza of several acres facing the east front of the capitol was packed a crowd of men and women numbering 10,000 by conservative estimate—such a gathering as is never seen there except on inauguration days.

All conditions of people were there, the lower elements in largest proportion, with many negroes among them. The capitol steps and the porticoes under the Grecian pillars were packed with well dressed people of both sexes, and most of the members of congress were in the throng.

Congressmen In the Crowd.

An early adjournment had been taken by the senate on account of the death of Senator Stockbridge, but the house, not wishing to seem to be terrorized by the demonstration, went through the semblance of a session with a handful of members. More than 300 city police reinforced the capitol officers, and detectives from several cities were sprinkled through the crowd, for the concentration of lawless local characters gave just grounds for apprehension of trouble apart from the presence of the Coxeyites.

It was shortly after 1 o'clock when the army halted in the public street south of the capitol grounds. Its five mile march down from Brightwood through the principal streets of the city had been witnessed by thousands attracted more from curiosity than by any interest in the movement, although their good natured yells were interpreted by the commonwealers to be applause. Such a fantastic aggregation never before paraded itself in seriousness before the public.

There were 500 in the line—Mrs. Annie L. Diggs, the populistic agitator of Kansas, in a barouche; Coxey's 17-year-old daughter in white on a cream colored steed, representing the Goddess of Peace; Carl Browne on a great gray Percheron stallion; General Jacob Slecher Coxey, his wife and the infant Legal Tender Coxey together in another carriage; Virginia la Valette, said to be an actress, on horseback, draped in an American flag, as the Philadelphia commune's Goddess of Peace; the unemployed carrying white flags of peace on staves, and the nondescript banners setting forth the doctrine of [illegible], good roads and enmity to plutocrats sprinkled through the caravan.

Browne and Coxey Went Alone.

Marshal Browne halted the procession there in the street and walked back to Coxey's carriage. The general kissed his wife, and then the two moving spirits of the affair, Browne swinging aloft a small banner, forced their way over the plaza to the capitol steps, their men, acting under orders, standing in their tracks.

After Coxey and Browne pressed a yelling crowd of several hundred men, most of them following Browne, conspicuous because of his unique costume.

Trampling and tearing its way through the costly shrubbery the mob went, while the squad of mounted police which had headed the parade, dazed for a moment by the unexpected move, charged recklessly into their midst.

Coxey was confronted by the police, as he took off his hat to speak on the steps, and his demand for his constitutional right, as he called it, being refused, he thrust upon them a printed protest, which proved to be a well worded epitome of populistic doctrines.

Meanwhile Carl Browne was being literally dragged by the collar of his coat through the crowd toward the nearest station after he had made a fight to retain his banner.

Police Used Clubs Freely.

Two police captains, a lieutenant and sergeant thrust the mild mannered Coxey without violence back across several hundred feet of humanity to his carriage. Mounted police were forcing their horses among the people, several of them cracking their clubs over the heads of the nearest persons. Women were shrieking in terror and men yelling fiercely. Some were being knocked down and trampled upon.

For five minutes there was a riot in that section of the mob in front of the east steps which occupied about an acre of the asphalt. Then the two agitating spirits having been removed and half a dozen particularly belligerent men having been taken in by the police, the disturbance was quelled without serious injury to a single person.

Another riot was started almost immediately near Coxey's carriage in the street, whither the crowds pressed as soon as the leader had rejoined his lines. Clubs were freely used upon the excited negroes of the class which abounds in this city, ready to seize upon any pretext for making disturbances. Cable cars clanging through the mob increased the danger, but here also none but minor injuries was inflicted.

Somehow the army was started off toward its new camp between double lines of police, followed by a mob of thousands, negroes and white men cheering like demons for Coxey and Browne. Within an hour the capitol grounds had almost regained their normal quiet, with only a few hundred people strolling around, and nothing but trampled shrubbery and grass ground under thousands of feet was left as evidences of the riot.

Jones and Browne In Jail.

Over in the station house six squares from the capitol, in the southeastern section of the city, Carl Browne was looking through the grating of his cell, his pockets having been searched and his description noted down, as is done with ordinary offenders. The result of the search was $7.35 in money, a small dismantled revolver and a consignment of commonweal literature.

"I am done talking. The American people must speak now," he declared grandiloquently to his hearers. "This is not the first time I have been in jail. I have been making these fights for the people all my life."

Little attention was paid to Christopher Columbus Jones, the little leader of the Philadelphia division, who had been unceremoniously and quietly locked into the custody of the law during the disturbance and who paced the cell adjoining Browne's. Both of the cells were narrow brick walled boxes, furnished only with board cots and tin drinking cups. Outside the station house about 100 curious idle men hung about.

General Coxey accepted the situation quietly, even philosophically. His army was put to work clearing up the new camping ground for occupancy, while Coxey drove over to the office of the District commissioners with an eye to business.

He made application to them for the necessary license to charge admission to his camp, doubtless anticipating a great rush there. The commissioners on their part desired time to consider the proposition. So, acting upon their suggestion, Mr. Coxey went to the clerk, and by paying $5 he secured a license for one day only.

From people who are in the confidence of Coxey it is learned that he had no idea when he started his march from Massillon that there would be objection to his making a speech on the steps of the capitol. Not until his interviews with the authorities did he become convinced that he would be stopped. Then he resolved to attempt to carry out his programme at all events, thinking that the outcome of police interference would be as advantageous as success for his purposes. He said:

"I have no complaint to make as far as the police are concerned. They treated me with great consideration, but they had to carry out the law, even if it was an unjust one. My speechmaking, however, at the capitol is over, and I shall not again attempt it. It would be no use. The American eagle did a good deal of squealing, but that was to be expected. The authorities pinched him rather hard. He'll have his say, however, sooner or later."

What Is Before the Army?

Most of the commonwealers accepted the outcome of their demonstration in the same spirit displayed by their chief. But few of them took any part in the disturbance at the capitol, outsiders of the lawless local element being responsible for the brief uproar.

The most serious chapter of the affair for Washington—the problem of what is to be done with the army—remains unsolved. Coxey has no intention of leading his recruits away. He still declares that the movement has just begun; that they will stay here until congress provides for them by passing his bills. Such a consummation is utterly improbable and impossible.

The public may cease to contribute provisions for the 350 before long, and then what?

Affairs at the White House and executive departments continued with their usual serenity all day. The cabinet met as usual while Coxey's army was pursuing its march to the capitol. Earlier in the day President Cleveland had visited a convention of physicians held in the National theater on Pennsylvania avenue, in the line of march where people were crowding the streets.

Today Carl Browne and Christopher Columbus Jones will be tried in the police court. Browne will be arraigned on the general charge of violating a United States statute—the one regulating the use of the capitol grounds. Probably Jones will be charged with disorderly conduct. Washington citizens wish most fervently that this trial might mark the passing of Coxeyism.

Browne Out on Bail.

Late in the afternoon Browne's bail was fixed at $500. Mrs. Emily Briggs, a wealthy resident of this city, and Mrs. Anna Hahn, a prominent labor sympathizer, undertook the bond, and the chief marshal was set free. Mrs. Briggs conveyed him in her carriage to her home, where he took dinner, and then he returned to the army in the new camp near the river.

Christopher Columbus Jones, who managed to get himself arrested in connection with Chief Marshal Browne, was left to languish in the station house. None of the Coxey people seem to be particularly interested in his condition or fate, and it is doubtful if any effort will be made to get him out of jail.

On reaching the camp Browne betook himself immediately to the tent at headquarters, where he lay down on a pile of blankets and refused to see any of his followers or outsiders except a select few. He said he was not injured in any way. In the evening Mr. Coxey made his appearance in the tent. He had not seen Browne since the exciting scenes of the day and listened with careful attention to the marshal's account of his arrest.

After mastering the situation he had the gasoline lamps lighted on either side of the platform in a lower corner of the new camp, and a few minutes later he was addressing an audience made up of a limited portion of his followers and such curious men and women as were willing to pay 10 cents to come in and see what was going on.

Mr. Coxey devoted most of his speech to a reiteration of his well known financial doctrines. He said, however, that he was well satisfied with what had transpired during the day. He believed that the fact that the common people of the United States represented by his followers had been denied the right peaceably to assemble and state their grievances would be heralded throughout the land and would result in bringing many thousands of the unemployed to this city. He still advised peace and declared that he believed his two bills would be passed by congress inside of two or three weeks.

The men are not as yet situated very comfortably in their new camp. There were some desertions during the day—how many it is not possible to learn. There was a large crowd about the camp during the evening, and a large detail of police was posted there to prevent disorder.

Train Demanded For Kelly.

DES MOINES, May 2.—Grand Master Workman Sovereign is in Des Moines today and avers his intention of throwing the influence of the Knights of Labor into the effort to secure a train for Kelly's army. In an interview with your correspondent Mr. Sovereign said that his action was determined upon at a meeting of his executive board held in Chicago, and he asserted that his organization would see to it that the industrials secured a train, even though every railroad in Iowa should be tied up.

"I came to Des Moines with the purpose of showing our hand in this matter," he said. "Kelly shall not walk out of the city, and the question must be decided within a very short time. I shall attempt to secure transportation without trouble, but if a train cannot be secured for money we have more drastic measures at hand."

"What will you do if you are refused a train?" Mr. Sovereign was asked.

"I can only repeat," he replied, "that Kelly shall not walk out. The army shall ride, though every road in Iowa be tied up. I do not say that the Knights of Labor could take such action of itself, but with the aid of the American Railway union such a move would be successful. That organization and our own are very close together. When I left President Debs in St. Paul, his last words were that anything we ordered his people would stand by, and I made a similar proposition. This thing is simply an issue between united railroads and organized labor, and if we cannot win here we might as well stop fighting. The issue is a square one, and we will meet it. We are in sympathy with these Coxey and Kelly movements, as they attract public attention and agitate the industial questions in which we are interested. As to their methods we will not speak, but they have the sympathy of organized labor. I am reliably informed that the majority of Kelly's men are members of labor unions, and we will neither let them starve nor walk out of Des Moines."

He said he expected to call a labor meeting to consider the matter today, and the action of the assembly is looked forward to with anxiety. The Rock Island railroad has sworn in about 200 trainmen as deputy sheriffs and will patrol its tracks in case the army marches parallel to the road. A meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly was held, at which Sovereign reiterated the statements made in his interview above. A committee consisting of Sovereign, General Weaver, ex-State Master Workman Vandermeulen of the Knights of Labor, Secretary Barnett of the American Railway union and two local labor leaders was appointed to see that transportation for Kelly is immediately secured. Sovereign sent a cipher message to President Debs, which he refused to translate.

Captain Murray Left Behind.

NEW HAVEN, May 2.—The Providence section of the Coxey army arrived here minus their captain, Martin Murray. It was stated that Murray had tired of the undertaking and deserted. His men declare he remained behind to care for a sick commonwealer at Middletown. Twelve were in the detachment, and four had deserted. The dozen are housed in Central Labor Union hall, which is also the resting place of Captain Sweetland's Connecticut squad of 24.

This afternoon Morrison I. Swift's men from Boston will come to town, and then New Haven will be the center for about 160 of the army. Yale students have been cautioned by the faculty not to interfere with the Coxeyites nor to attend tonight's mass meeting.

Swift's Men Getting Tired.

GUILFORD, Conn., May 2.—Swift's contingent reached here from Lyme, and they rested their weary limbs in a barn. The Coxeyites are pretty well played out, and it is doubtful if some of them continue to march further. They are sore footed and tired, and several members of the army have been taken with sickness. There have been several desertions since they departed from Saybrook, and the army numbers but 28 men. They pushed on to New Haven this morning.

Galvin In Wheeling.

WHEELING, May 2.—Galvin's contingent of Frye's army reached Wheeling and was conducted through the city by the police to a camping ground on the island. All along the streets on the march to the camp the army was watched by good humored but not sympathetic crowds of thousands of men, women and children.

Progress of Randall's Army.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Randall's army reached Grand Crossing and quartered there for the night in an old World's fair hotel. The march of 17 miles over city pavements was hard on the army, and the men were badly tired out. Randall expects to reach Hammond, Ind., tonight and will march across northern Indiana and Ohio.

Frightful Boiler Explosion.

RALEIGH, May 2.—Two large boilers at Robertson & Godwin's lumber mills at Williamston exploded. There were 15 persons in the buildings, and all were injured. Isaac Bright was dead when taken out, and four others are dying. Several of those injured were women who had taken breakfast to their husbands, who were employees. One boiler was blown 80 yards from its bed.

Fatal Freight Wreck.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 2.—A freight train going east on the Pennsylvania railroad was wrecked by a broken wheel at Tipton. Brakeman John D. Sanserman of this city was instantly killed. Harris L. Marks of Robertsdale, who was riding on the train, was seriously injured. It is feared that the bodies of several tramps are still under the wreck.

Vestibule Train Into Collision.

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa., May 2.—The Lehigh Valley vestibule train collided with a freight train at Rocky Forest, 18 or 20 miles above this place. The engine of the passenger train was overturned, and several freight cars were wrecked. The train hands escaped by jumping, but one passenger had his hip dislocated.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Eagle Mills, F. C. Collison; Johnsonville, F. H. Akin; Pittstown, H. T. Reed; South New Berlin, J. P. Sage; South Salem, E. Q. Lyon.

Pennsylvania—Hartley, N. C. Herbst.

Imprisoned Family Dug Out.

MONTREAL, May 2.—The Gauthier family of four, who were buried under the disastrous landslide at St. Alban, Que., on Friday night last, were dug out of their living tomb on Monday after an imprisonment of three days and nights.

New Mississippi Bridges.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.—The new bridges of the Burlington system across the Mississippi at Alton, Ills., and across the Missouri at Bellefountain Bluffs, Mo., were formally opened.

Ex-Senator Dawes' Golden Wedding.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 2.—Ex-Senator and Mrs. Henry Dawes celebrated their golden wedding at their home on Elm street, Pittsfield, by a reception.

Republicans Won In Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 2.—Municipal elections were held in a number of cities in Indiana. Returns indicate Republican victories in a majority of cases.

Explosion at a Torpedo Station.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 2.—An explosion occurred in the torpedo station in the gun cotton in the drying room. One man was injured.

RIOT IN CLEVELAND.

A Procession of Unemployed Men Takes Possession of the Streets.

CLEVELAND, May 2.—The unemployed of Cleveland celebrated May day with a meeting, a procession that was marked by several riotous demonstrations and by listening to and applauding a rank anarchistic address on the public square when they had finished their marching. The day was full of excitement. The procession was composed of between 6,000 and 10,000 men and boys, mostly foreigners. They followed a United States flag and started in military order.

They had not gone a mile, however, before the procession collided with an electric car. The motorman refused to stop when commanded to do so, and the car was wrecked. A few minutes later another car was met. A policeman on the front platform commanded the mob to give way. When they refused to do so, he fired his revolver into the air. Many of the marchers drew pistols and began firing, at least 100 shots being discharged, but nobody was hurt. Some of the bullets went through the window of a store, however, and two of the clerks had narrow escapes.

The procession was broken up temporarily, but the lines were reformed. Soon a third car was met, and when the driver refused to stop he was felled with a brick, though not seriously hurt. The line of march was across the south and west sides and back to the square. As the procession moved up Superior street on the return it filled that thoroughfare from building to building. Street cars were stopped, and all the traffic was suspended for a time.

The driver of a car who refused to take his team out of the way received a bad wound in the side of the face from an iron bolt thrown by one of the marchers. During all these disturbances not a single arrest was made, the police evidently not desiring to court trouble with a mob in such an ugly temper.

When the procession had returned to the square, several speeches were made by Central Labor union leaders, who advised the men to go home, but an anarchist finally got hold of the crowd and made a speech which started another procession.

It headed out through the manufacturing district in the eastern part of the city, and it was feared that more violence would be committed, but nothing more serious than the breaking of a few windows in a factory occurred.
